Arms Bill Is Sent To House; Rules Committee Meets

Representative Fish Raps What He Describes 'Gag' Attempt to Shut Off Any Debate

Says Bill Is New

Fish says Act Which Senate Debated Should Not Be Considered Old

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—The administration's neutrality bill, fought over for four weeks in the Senate, was received by the House today.

Hopeful for a final vote by the end of the week, leaders arranged for the rules committee to meet early this afternoon to pass upon what Speaker Bankhead described as the "simplest" procedure that could be written for consideration of the measure.

A special "rule," which the committee was expected to adopt, would provide that the bill, which substitutes a cash and carry plan for the present arms embargo, be sent to a joint Senate-House committee to compose differences between the two chambers.

The House approved a neutrality bill in June which provided for only a limited embargo.

The House is expected to take up the legislation tomorrow.

Bankhead said the first order of business would be action on the rule. Immediately afterward debate will begin on whether special instructions shall be given the conferees.

As House conferees, the speaker said he would name Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.) of the foreign affairs committee and Representative Luther A. Johnson (D., Tex.), Kee (D., W. Va.), Fish (R., N. Y.) and Eaton (R., N. J.), all ranking members of the committee.

Denounces 'Gag' Rule
Meanwhile, Fish denounced what he described as administration efforts to "shut off" debate on the bill by invoking House "gag" rules.

Fish said such procedure would "destroy the House as a legislative body." He said the neutrality bill as it came back to the House was "a completely new bill," and should be debated "adequately."

Offering the Senate neutrality bill to the House on a "take it or leave it" basis, administration leaders took sharp issue today with demands of arms embargo advocates for a chance to revise the legislation.

The administration forces, confident of duplicating their Senate victory for embargo repeal and a "cash and carry" trade program, wanted to prevent amendments being offered from the floor. They insisted that the House vote on the original Senate bill.

Asks Attention Right

But Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.), leader of the anti-repeal bloc, contended that the House had a right to alter the measure as it saw fit. He gave notice that he not only would fight in the rules committee but also would seek at least three days of House debate. Repeal chiefs tentatively suggested two days.

Although administration lieutenants claimed victory by at least 30 votes, Fish disputed this statement and estimated the margin for either side at less than 10 votes. Rep. Boland (D-Ill.), the Democratic whip, was taking a poll to ascertain the views of all party members.

House consideration of the bill was complicated by an intricate parliamentary situation.

Last summer the House passed its new neutrality bill, containing a modified arms embargo. It would permit the sale of such "implements of war" as airplanes, but would bar sale of arms and ammunition to belligerents. At present, "implements of war" also are banned.

Will Get $300,000

Washington, October 30 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdolf, serving a sentence in a military prison, soon will get back $300,000 of an estate which the government guarded 20 years for him. Attorney General Murphy has ordered that the convicted draft evader of World War days be given more than half the $335,540 worth of property seized when he fled to Germany in 1920.

Painful Meeting

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 30 (AP)—Brinley Amos and his wife, estranged six years, met again under painful circumstances. Police reported Amos was the driver of an automobile which knocked Mrs. Amos to the pavement as she marched in a Salvation Army parade.

Definite Action

German Side of Counsel Table Vacant Today

During Meeting; Cash Is Held

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—The German-American mixed claims commission awarded approximately $50,000,000 today to Americans with claims against Germany arising from the Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., sabotage cases in 1916 and 1917.

The commission, last June 15, found imperial Germany responsible for the munitions disasters in the New York port area prior to United States entry into the World War.

Today's action made the definite award to the claimants. Damages of $21,157,277 plus five per cent interest—estimated to approximate $50,000,000 in all—was ordered paid to the claimants.

Germany has a special deposit account at the United States treasury of between $23,000,000 and $26,000,000 to meet the award. The treasury also holds about $500,000,000 "paper value," in German government bonds.

Germany, however, has denied the jurisdiction of the commission. Dr. Victor Huecking, the German commissioner, walked out on the deliberations prior to the decision last June and the German government has protested against making the award. The German side of the counsel table was vacant today.

Tells of Notification

At today's session, attended by Umpire Owen J. Roberts and Commissioner Christopher B. Garnett, the latter announced he had duly notified Dr. Richard Bauglitz, German agent, of the meeting.

At the same time, the commission made public correspondence between Hans Thomsen, counselor at the German embassy, and Secretary Hull.

Thomsen protested to the state department against the procedure before a "rump commission." He told Hull that Roberts, who is also an associate justice of the Supreme Court, has "had no neutrality at all." Thomsen made "most emphatic representation" against the "illegal act of the umpire," and asked the state department to quash proceedings of the commission.

Hull replied under date of October 18 that "I must refrain from engaging in a discussion of the various complaints and protests set out in your communication and content myself by stating that since the department is without jurisdiction over the commission, I consider that it would be highly inappropriate for it to intervene directly or indirectly in the work of the commission, or to endeavor, in the slightest manner, to determine the course of its proceedings."

"I have entire confidence," the secretary's letter continued, "in the ability and integrity of the umpire and the commissioner appointed by the United States despite your severe, and I believe, entirely unwarranted criticism, and I am constrained to invite your attention to the fact that the remarkable action of the commissioner appointed by Germany was apparently designed to frustrate or postpone indefinitely the work of the commission, at a time, when, after years of labor on the particular cases involved, it was expected that its functions would be brought to a conclusion."

Dr. Soper Dies

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30 (AP)—Dr. Willard Burr Soper, 66, noted authority on tuberculosis and member of the Yale University faculty, died today in New Haven Hospital after a short illness. At the time of his death, Dr. Soper was medical director of the William Wirt Winchester Hospital, tuberculosis unit of New Haven Hospital.

Harold Johnson Dies Suddenly Sunday Of Heart Attack; Prominent Athlete

Harold Johnson, a U. S. postal employee for 21 years, and one of Kingston's best known athletes, died Sunday afternoon at his home, 50 Derrbacher street, of a heart attack.

Raking leaves in his yard, Mr. Johnson complained of feeling ill and Dr. John B. Krom was called, but he died shortly after the physician's arrival.

"Johnny" Johnson, as he was known from his school days, was one of Kingston's best known citizens, not alone in athletic circles but by practically everybody who met him in some way or another as he carried out his duties as a postman. For the past several years he handled the parcel post route.

Back in 1914, "Johnny" began his athletic career in old Kingston Academy and the next year was on the first football, basketball and baseball teams turned out of

La Guardia Not Here, Says Attorney Egan

John Egan, associate corporation counsel of the city of New York, with offices in this city, today requested The Freeman to deny the published report this morning that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York city visited at the offices here of Attorney Henry R. Bright and John Egan on Saturday.

Attorney Egan branded as a falsehood the publication that the New York city mayor was in this city. He stated that the nearest Mayor LaGuardia was to Kingston was 12 miles and that at the Ashokan Reservoir. Mayor LaGuardia and a party of New York officials also were making an inspection of the Delaware water project, the 85-mile long aqueduct now under construction.

Attorney Egan further stated that if Mayor LaGuardia visited Kingston he would have got in touch with Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who is a friend of long standing and also president of the New York State Mayors' Conference.

Three Counties Ask Custody of Pletch In Aviator's Death

Barnstorming Flier Is Said to Have Given Confession He Shot Carl Bivens While in Flight

Macon, Mo., Oct. 30 (AP)—Three Missouri counties sought custody today of Earnest P. (Larry) Pletch, 29-year-old barnstorming aviator who police said confessed slaying his companion during a flight.

Pletch, Indiana authorities said, related he fatally shot Carl Bivens, 38-year-old Brookfield, Mo., flying instructor after they quarreled while in a plane over northeastern Missouri. Placing charges of first degree murder, kidnapping and airplane theft were deliberated by Macon, Linn and Shelby counties.

Prosecuting Attorney Fred C. Bollow of Shelby county said a conference was planned by attorneys of the three counties to decide which would prosecute. Bollow expressed his belief Bivens was killed while in the air over Macon county, although his body was found in a thicket near Cherry Box, in Shelby county.

Flying alone in a yellow monoplane, Pletch was arrested when he landed at Bloomington, Ind. Saturday night, almost at the same time Bivens' body was found. Coroner C. W. Musgrave said the instructor had been shot twice in the head.

Held in Jail

Pletch was held in the Macon county jail here.

Pletch was quoted by officers that he also planned to crash the plane, killing himself, but lost his nerve.

He said he told this story: "He received an hour and a half instructions from Bivens Friday morning."

Then Pletch proposed they "go to Mexico" in the plane Bivens had borrowed, and Bivens agreed. They went aloft immediately and headed east, to visit Pletch's well-to-do parents on a farm near Frankfort.

A disagreement started when Bivens inquired if Pletch was armed and Pletch answered he "carried a gun with the intention

Rappelyea's Bid Creates New Hope For Village Folk

Prattville Lumber Dealer Bids in Part of Plant and May Re-employ Idle Craftsmen

Saturday at Chichester as the auctioneer's hammer echoed hollowly through the recreation center and the villagers watched the foundations of their existence being sold from under them new hope suddenly sprang to life.

For without previous announcement Willis Rappelyea and his son, Claude, both of Prattville, walked into the building and Claude Rappelyea bid in the factory plant for $2,100.

There were cheers and applause when the bid was made, but the volume increased to deafening proportions and the men were fairly "mobbed" by villagers when it was announced that it was the tentative plan of the two men to salvage a portion of the plant for production purposes.

Willis Rappelyea was the man who from February until June managed the factory under a temporary agreement and employed about 40 men, after it was announced that without such work the men could not support their families and might face the loss of their rented dwellings. In June, Rappelyea's temporary pact with the court expired and since then the place has been idle.

No Comment Upon Plan

"I don't want to make known my plans or say when I will open up. If this sale is approved by the court, I have a plan but I want to first see what action the court takes toward approval of the auction sale. I am keeping my plans quiet for the present as to what I shall do," said Willis Rappelyea. He did say however that it was his intention, if the bid was accepted by the court, to tear down the older portion of the plant and operate the newer portion.

To Make Survey

Mr. Rappelyea said that he would have to make a survey and see what machinery and equipment would be required. "You know the equipment has all been sold," he said. To a Freeman reporter he said that it was his hope that he could open the plant and continue to operate along the lines which had been his policy during the temporary occupation of the plant. At that time he manufactured chairs and dining room sets. Whether he would limit his manufacturing to such a line should the court approve of Saturday's sale he said he could not now state. He probably could employ about 50 men he said.

Other Enterprises

The parcel was bid in by Claude Rappelyea, son and business associate of the Prattville lumberman. Mr. Rappelyea also operates a garage and automobile sales at Prattville.

When Mr. Rappelyea came forward to sign his contract of sale and the natives of Chichester recognized him as the successful bidder, loud cheers went up to fill the hall, which adjoins the village church. While Claude Rappelyea signed the contract of purchase, his father also came forward to receive the congratulations of the former employees at the plant.

Census Supervision

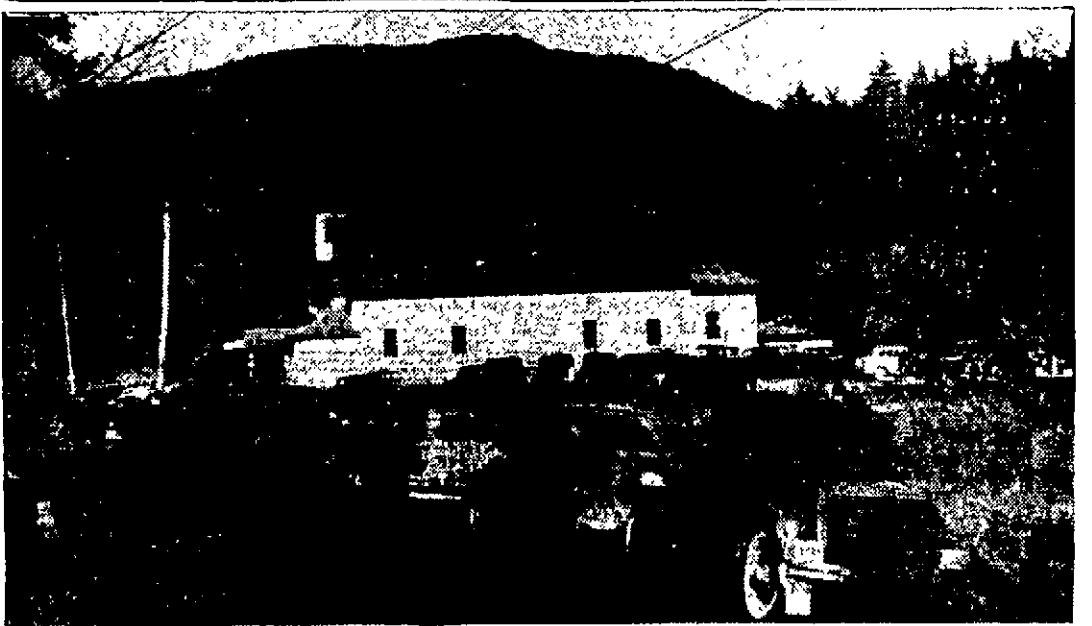

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—The names of nearly two score men and women who have been recommended by Democratic leaders to supervise the taking of the 1940 census in New York state have been submitted to the census bureau by Senator Mead (D., N. Y.). They will be appointed as supervisors and assistant supervisors.

They are qualified after passing examinations. Supervisors will receive $2,000 a year and assistant supervisors $1,500 a month. In addition the supervisors will have authority to appoint office assistants. The names forwarded to the census bureau by Mead included: 27th District: James J. Connolly, Catskill, supervisor; George Carney, Valatie, assistant.

Neither Kith Nor Kin

Middleport, N. Y., Oct. 30 (AP)—While funeral services were being held for David H. Smith, a man was found unconscious in the driveway of the Smith farm. The man was David H. Smith of near-by Medina, injured attempting to crank his car. Later he said he was neither an acquaintance nor a relative of the deceased.

Rappelyea Tries to Continue Industry for Folk of Chichester

Saturday afternoon the village of Chichester was sold at an absolute public auction, in separate parcels. In the top photo Claude Rappelyea signs his personal check in payment for the former Schwarzwaelder factory. Seated is Willis Rappelyea, who with his son, Claude, by agreement with the court opened the factory in February of this year and worked on old orders, keeping about 40 of the natives of the village employed until June. Standing in the back are: Benjamin M. Kaye (center), senior partner in the firm Kaye, Scholer, Fierman and Hays, counselors at law, who were appointed by the court as attorneys for William Schwarzwaelder & Co., in reorganization. On the left is one of Mr. Kaye's assistants and on the right is Stephen A. McDonald, auctioneer. In the bottom photo is the little recreation hall where the sale was conducted. The hall was purchased by the American Legion Post of Phoenixia.

Glasco Negro Dies As Result of Brawl Over 50-Cent Debt

Christopher C. Miller, 32, Held at Ulster County Jail on First Degree Murder Charge

Charles Davis, 27, Glasco negro, his side torn out by a charge from a .12 gauge shotgun, fired from a distance of but a few feet, the climax of a craps game argument over an alleged debt of 50 cents, died at the Kingston Hospital at 4:22 Sunday morning as the result of his injuries.

Christopher C. Miller, 32, also of Glasco, negro, who according to Sergeant James J. Cunningham admitted the shooting, is being held at the Ulster county jail, following arraignment before Justice Charles H. Bennett of Saugerties, for appearance before the grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree.

The shooting took place about 12:30 Sunday morning at Miller's home in the "Mulberry Street" section of Glasco, where a number of negroes had gathered for a game of craps.

Troopers Investigate

Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Keefe immediately took up an investigation of the affair, being joined by Troopers Metzger and Baker of the B. C. I. There was some delay in calling the troopers through an error in first calling the Saugerties police department and during the half hour or so that elapsed before Sergeant Cunningham received word Davis had been placed in a car belonging to Samuel Lockett and taken to the hospital, where he died about four hours later.

Those Participating

According to the story told the troopers, Davis had called at Miller's house late Saturday, although the two were not on good terms and later a game of craps was formed. Finally participating in the game were Miller, Davis, Olen Tate, Herbert Neal and Andrew Miller.

It was stated that Miller loaned Davis $1.50 to get into the game and by midnight, when Davis had

Bids Must Undergo Study Before Their Acceptance Made

Auctioneer Offers Property as Whole, but Move Fails to Bring Response; About 500 Persons Attend

Parcels Listed

Most Bids at Auction Are Low; Reservoir Status Is Discussed

Chichester's momentous auction sale Saturday afternoon brought slightly more than $32,000 in bids. This offer for the famous little Catskill mountain village is below the anticipated $50,000 and the bids are subject to court acceptance. Judicial decision by Stephen Olney in New York city is expected within a few days.

An earlier single offer for the properties, which was turned down by the court, was for $30,500.

When the auctioneer's hammer fell shortly after 2 o'clock, for opening of the sale and a clerk droned through the conditions of sale there was little spirit in the crowd of at least 500 people. Seats for 200 had been provided but the villagers turned out to add to the out of town crowd until the hall was filled.

"Looks like one of the old elections," remarked one of the residents as he surveyed the crowd in front of the Social hall.

After reading the terms of sale the auctioneer put up the entire village as a whole but repeated urgings brought not a single bid and the offer was withdrawn.

Put up as individual parcels the 44 houses, factory, general store, social hall, recreation center and some 20 building lots and a 21 acre parcel brought slightly more than the $32,000 figure.

Water Works Query

Before bidding on the property commenced there were several queries as to the water works of the village which has in the past been operated by the company and water supplied to the homes of the village through a central system which consisted of two reservoirs. With the division of the property in individual parcels the villagers wanted to know what assurance they would have of water supply and how it would be maintained.

One prospective purchaser wanted to know whether the water works system, being an asset, would be sold to some individual.

Benjamin M. Kaye, of Kaye, Scholer, Fierman & Hays of 149 Broadway, New York city, attorneys appointed by the court to represent the company in reorganization, explained that the water works was not to be sold as a separate parcel but was to remain intact and all purchasers would share in the right to its use. It was stated that it would be up to the villagers to form an organization for operation of the water system against which every property owner would have a right of use. No individual could control it since it belonged to the entire village. Each bidder gets an easement to the use of the water supply and in that way the system as an asset was absorbed by every property owner in the village, Mr. Kaye said. The water easement was not reserved to any individual party.

Outlines Sale

After this Mr. McDonald outlined the sale. He said that pursuant to an order of the U. S. District court the property was to be offered for sale as a single parcel and also as separate parcels in accordance with Judge Goddard's order.

Also Wants Water

Relative to the water works proposition one resident who later purchased a house said he wanted a house "but I want water too" he said.

M. Claude Moseman, Saugerties attorney, said he understood that the easement from Mr. and Mrs. Schwarzwaelder had been given to the company and he inquired whether this was true and if so whether it was not true that the easement would run to all purchasers. He was told that was the fact and that the easement was on record in the Ulster county clerk's office.

Prior to offering the property for sale Mr. McDonald said that Chichester had become a "national village" since the publicity of its plight had been published from coast to coast. In the group came to bid were people from all sections of the country in which the auction notices had been circulated. Established in 1872 the village had gone on for years as a prosperous community until the factory closed down and he proceeded to paint a picture of the beauties of the Catskills and the desirability of owning a home in the village of Chichester with its pure air, fishing and outdoor sports facilities.

Benjamin M. Kaye was presented as a member of the firm of attorneys appointed by the court to attempt to keep the business.

Lower Taxes but Not At Expense of Labor

One of the gratifying things about the Heiselman administration is that tax rates have been kept low by honesty, efficiency and good management, and not at the expense of the municipal wage earner.

Kingston is one of the few cities in the State to go through the depression with flying colors without cutting the salaries of municipal workers.

Instead of taking it out on the wage-earner, as many cities did, the Heiselman administration reduced the cost of government as it should have been reduced, by eliminating waste and extravagance and by using modern engineering construction and business methods in government.

This highly commendable policy of the Heiselman administration in respect to labor is far different than that of his present Democratic opponent when he was mayor in 1932.

One of the first acts of the Carey administration was to reduce the salaries of truck drivers in the Department of Public Works.

In the city clerk's office, in minute book 22, page 118, there appears in the official record of the June, 1932, meeting of the Common Council, a letter. This letter is dated June 2, 1932, and is addressed to the Common Council by the present Democratic candidate for mayor. In this letter he requests the Council to return the school budget to the Board of Education with the demand that all school teachers take a salary cut of eight per cent (8%). In the same letter, he pledges the school teachers that their salary reductions, if made by the Board of Education, would be followed by similar salary reductions in every city department.

At the time this attempt to reduce wages was made, Mayor Heiselman was president of the Common Council.

Mayor Heiselman then was, and still is, in favor of keeping the cost of government down by good management and not by reducing the pay of the wage earner.

Mayor Heiselman led the fight which defeated, by a Council vote of 8 to 5, the attempt of the present Democratic candidate for mayor to reduce expenditures by taking it out on the wage-earner instead of applying sound business methods to government.

This is only one example of the fair, sound, intelligent policies of Mayor Heiselman which has made his administration of city affairs in Kingston one of the finest examples of municipal government in the State.

If you wish to retain such a man as your mayor for two years more, vote for him when you go to the polls on Election Day.

Po'keepsie Woman Is Awarded $7,500 In Husband's Death

Mrs. Vincenza Morano of Poughkeepsie was awarded $7,500 in supreme court in Dutchess county for the death of her husband, who was killed south of Port Ewen on May 17, 1938, when the car driven by Mario Cavallaro in which Morano was a passenger crashed into another car after leaving the roadway and then bounding back overturned and killed Morano.

The verdict was against Bruno Trimpoli, Schenectady contractor, who built the Port Ewen water works line. The plaintiff claimed that the contractor had left a ditch along the concrete roadway in poor condition after completing work. It was testified that the excavation had been filled and settled, allowing a drop from the concrete pavement to the shoulder. The car of Cavallaro, against whom a no cause of action verdict was found, in avoiding another car ran off the pavement south of the Walker gas station and dropped to the shoulder and in endeavoring to regain the pavement went out of control of the driver and shot across the road to strike another car.

Private Funeral For Alice Brady; Victim of Cancer

ALICE BRADY

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—Private funeral services will be held today for Alice Brady, stage and screen favorite for a quarter of a century.

Burial will follow in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery at Tarrytown, N. Y., for the dark-eyed actress who played one of her greatest film roles—Mrs. O'Leary in "In Old Chicago"—while suffering from the disease that killed her.

This performance won her an award from the National Academy of Motion Pictures in 1938. For more than a year, she had known she was stricken with cancer. Saturday night she died quietly in her sleep only a few days before her 47th birthday.

At the bedside were her father, William A. Brady, famous Broadway producer, and her stepmother, actress Grace George. Her son, Donald Crane, also survives. Miss Brady crossed theatrical footlights against the wishes of her father, who had trained her to become an opera singer. Since 1911, she had gained recognition as a comedienne and skilled dramatic actress in scores of film and stage appearances.

She was starred in both the silent and sound eras of the screen. She last appeared in "Young Mr. Lincoln." Among stage plays in which she was stricken with cancer were "The Family Cupboard," "Forever After," "The Bride of the Lamb," "The Thief," "Sour Grapes," and Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra."

An accomplished pianist, Miss Brady was one of the best educated stage figures of her day. She spoke French, Italian and German fluently and still could speak fairly well the Latin she learned as a child in a New Jersey convent. Her marriage to James Lyon Crane, an actor, ended in divorce in 1922.

Katrine Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Lake Katrine Home Department and an all day quilting at the home of Mrs. M. Bogart, 138 Prospect street, Kingston, Thursday. All members are asked to be present to help quilt and sew blocks. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon.

Drum Corps Meeting

There will be a meeting of the American Legion Drum Corps tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street to make plans for the Halloween party and parade.

Mealey Orders Sale Of License Plate To Begin Dec. 11

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Carroll E. Mealey has issued orders to motor vehicle bureaus in the state that sale of 1940 automobile plates for passenger, commercial, suburban, trailer, snowmobile, farm and motorcycle will begin on Monday, December 11. Application blanks will be ready for distribution on that date. This early distribution of plates is for the purpose of allowing people who intend to go south for the season to obtain plates early but the plates must not be displayed on vehicles until January 1, 1940.

It is not required to display 1940 plates until February 1, 1940. Central and district offices will begin sale of 1940 dealers and transporters plates on Monday, December 11, 1939, and applications will be available on December 7.

Omnibus, ambulance and private rentals will go on sale Friday, December 1, 1939, and applications will be available November 27. Omnibus application blanks are divided into two classes, one for vehicles carrying eight or more passengers and one for seven or less.

won some money, Miller asked for repayment of the loan. Davis gave Miller a dollar bill, but said he would have to owe the other fifty cents as he had no change. An argument followed, when Davis took another dollar bill from his pocket, tore it in two and handed Miller one of the halves.

The argument became more heated and the climax came when Davis is alleged to have called Miller a name which, according to the latter's statement to Sergeant Cunningham, made him "mad." Miller picked up a stove lid, but finally threw it on to the floor and went into an adjoining bedroom.

'Boys, He Got Me'

There, according to the statement made to Sergeant Cunningham, Miller loaded his double-barreled shotgun, returned to the kitchen and, according to the account, pointed blank at Davis. "I wanted to kill him," the sergeant quoted Miller as saying. The light on the kitchen table was blown out by the discharge of the gun, it was stated by the other occupants of the room, while at the same time Davis was heard to cry out, "Boys, he got me."

The lamp, again lighted, disclosed Davis lying on the floor in a pool of blood, which was pouring from the terrible wound in his side and abdomen. Some attempt was made, apparently, to find a towel to staunch the flow of blood, while one of the party went to call the police. Tate, Neal and Andrew Miller picked up the wounded man, placed him in the Lockett car and took him to the hospital.

Davis, who recently was employed at the Washburn brickyard, but had been laid off, was married, although he was not living with his wife, he was making his home with his parents, Sergeant Cunningham said that Davis and Miller had known each other for 12 years.

Neal, who with Tate, is said to have joined the game at the Miller home after 10 o'clock, declared that the men present were sober. He told Sergeant Cunningham that he drank a little whiskey which he found in a pint bottle.

Miller was found at his home, alone with his wife, when Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Keefe arrived to arrest him. The troopers found the kitchen "full of blood," the dice which had been used in the game were lying on the floor and the shotgun was found in Miller's bedroom. Sergeant Cunningham said that a discharged shell was found in one barrel of the gun, but the trigger to the other barrel did not work.

Other members of the party present at the time of the shooting narrowly escaped being struck by the charge fired at Davis, from a distance of about 13 feet, Sergeant Cunningham estimated.

In addition to the investigation made by the troopers, Deputy Sheriff Arthur H. Brown, with Deputy Sheriffs Charles McCullough and Jerry Mayone of Glasco, went to the Miller home and pictures were taken.

Hill Families Losing Ground in California

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, CALIF.—California's hill population is rapidly declining, according to Jan O. M. Brook, assistant professor of geography at the University of California.

"The passing of the old hill family and many of its descendants," he said, "is due to the decline in lumbering and range operations, decline in the birth rate, the competition of valley and rural communities."

"These combined with the fact that California has a low birthrate as compared with the country as a whole, have brought about the phenomenon of lower population in the uplands, while population in the lowlands is increasing."

As a result of this situation, he declared, a high number of schools in the hill country have been closed, not because of the establishing of consolidated schools for several formerly independent districts, but because the number of children has so decreased that even the required minimum of five for each district cannot be maintained.

"The situation has become so marked," he said, "that certain counties in the hill districts are obliged to depend on migration to maintain their present population."

CAPTURED U-BOAT CREW HELD IN PRISON CAMP

This first picture of German war prisoners held by Britain in prison camps shows, according to a caption transmitted from London, the captured crew of a U-boat. The men are taking exercise behind a barbed wire barricade under the eye of an armed guard. Photo was taken by British Pictorial Productions, released by the ministry of information and radioed from London to New York.

New Type 'Pantry'

The modern-day storage closet for canned goods, bulk foods, and miscellaneous items is vastly different from the "preserves pantry" of yesterday, although their function is the same. Vermin-proof storage shelves and bins are now being made for installation in special closets set aside for storage. The shelves are completely sanitary and adjustable, while bins can be obtained in a satisfactory range of sizes for every purpose. Bins which are dust-proof and vermin-proof may be installed to further safeguard food. Fronts are provided with card-holders for suitable identification, while front edges of shelves can be furnished with or without label holders.

Sisters Keep Pace

The "three Wilkinson sisters" of Coventry, England, all their lives have been accustomed to doing things together. Now that they are married they have continued the habit, for they gave birth to baby sons on the same day. The mothers are Mrs. Mavis Sutton, 25; Mrs. Joyce Holland, 24, and Mrs. Doris Waters, 26. Mrs. Waters is really the aunt of the other two, being their father's sister.

Halloween Party Is Expected To Attract Several Thousand

Several thousand children and adults are expected to participate in the special Halloween celebration to be held under the joint auspices of the American Legion and the city Department of Recreation Tuesday evening.

One of the big features of the evening will be the two parades, one of which will start at the corner of McEntee street and Wurts street, and the other at Academy Green. Each of these parades will end at the municipal auditorium.

The parades will both start at 7:30 p. m., with the American Legion Drum Corps leading the uptown group, and another band at the head of the downtown contingent. Children and their parents, as well as members of the bands, will be in costume, making this year's parade one of the best yet held.

At the auditorium the program will be taken up with special Halloween program features, community singing, and will close with an hour and a half performance of talking pictures. It is hoped that parents will encourage their children to take part in this program, and that they themselves will join in the fun and activity which is being arranged.

Rally Tonight

The downtown Democratic rally, postponed Saturday because of rain, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock on the corner of Broadway and the Strand. If rainy, the meeting will be in Weber's Hall, 51 Broadway.

Goshen Farmer Dies

Goshen, N. Y., Oct. 30 (AP)—Frederick McCrea, 39-year-old farmer, died here today from an infected thumb broken when he fell from a wagon two days ago.

Francis A. Waters Dies on Sunday

Francis A. Waters, 93, retired cashier of the State of New York National Bank and ex-examiner for the New York State Banking Department, died early Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hamilton Boyd, 120 St. James street, with whom he resided. He had lived a retired life since 1925.

Mr. Waters came to Kingston at the age of three with his father, the Rev. Dr. George Waters, who for 20 years was rector of St. John's Episcopal Church here. After finishing old Kingston Academy, then a private boarding school, Mr. Waters started his banking career with the old State of New York Bank and remained with this institution for 25 years. While he was cashier, the bank became a national bank.

Upon leaving this bank, Mr. Waters became an examiner for the New York State Banking Department, and later joined the staff of the Cantine Tissue Company in Saugerties, remaining until his retirement from business life in 1925.

Mr. Waters' wife was Mary Lawrence Ludlum, daughter of Judge G. W. Ludlum of this city. He is survived by three children, Mrs. Milton S. Stewart and Francis A. Waters, Jr., of this city, and Mrs. Boyd, and four grandchildren, Robert L. Stewart of Cincinnati, Ruth Granger Stewart and Dorothy Stewart, both of Kingston, and Dr. Hamilton Boyd of Albany and Kingston.

The funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, No. 1 Pearl street Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with burial in Montrose Cemetery.

Choirs to Rehearse

The choir of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, St. Paul's Church and the Comforter Church will rehearse this evening in Comforter Hall at 7:30 o'clock, instead of Thursday as originally planned. Only the music for the concert at the hall, November 14, will be rehearsed. Every member of the combined choirs is urged to be present.

Card Party Off

The card party of Auxiliary 33, Tappan Camp, which was to be held Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Teetsel, has been postponed until later.

Gun Stolen

Frank Emerson of Rifton reported to the local police Saturday evening that a Winchester 12-gauge, five-shot gun was stolen from his car parked in the rear of the Broadway Theatre while he was attending the show there. The gun, he said, was valued at $30.

Harvey Deuell, 48, Dies While Riding Toward Manhattan

New York, Oct. 30. (AP)—Harvey Deuell, one of the nation's highest paid newspapermen as managing editor of the New York Daily News, died yesterday of heart disease as he drove through Teaneck, N. J.

The car left the road, ripped through six guard posts and ran on 200 yards in a wide ditch before stopping.

The 48-year-old editor, whose tax returns showed an income of $141,000 in 1937 as news executive of the paper with the largest circulation in America, had suffered from a weakened heart since recovering from influenza 10 months ago.

Deuell started newspaper work 25 years ago as a $9.40 a week reporter on the old Denver Republican. He later won recognition for his coverage of Colorado mine labor disputes for the Denver Rocky Mountain News.

He also worked on the old Denver Times and the Chicago Examiner before going to the Chicago Tribune, where he became city editor.

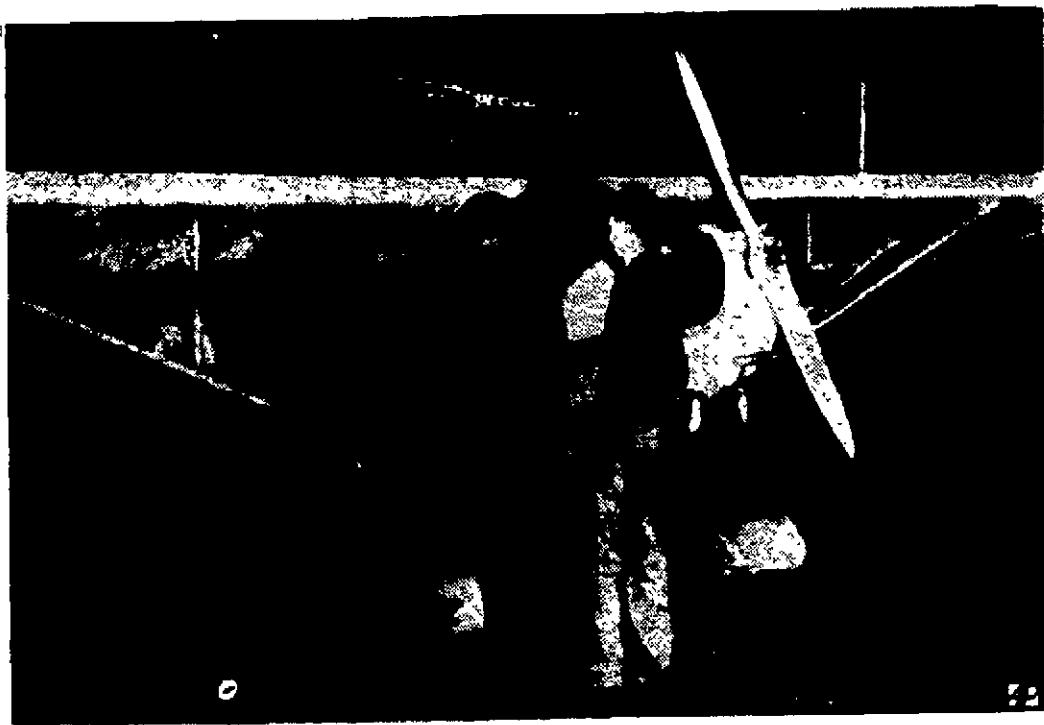

In 1925 he became executive editor of Liberty Magazine and in 1927 came to the Daily News as city editor. He was named managing editor July 1, 1935.

Deuell prepared himself for the paper's special attention to picture coverage by taking a course in photography at Rochester, N. Y., and becoming an expert amateur cameraman.

He lived at Cornwall, N. Y., with his wife, the former Henrietta E. G. Kinley, who was a world war correspondent under the byline "Peggy Hull."

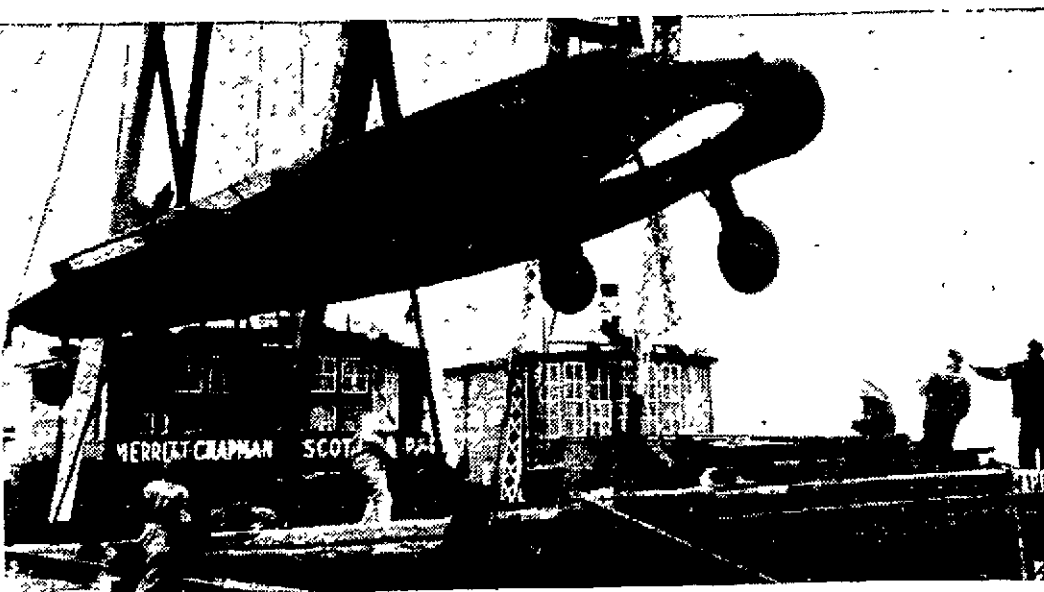

His mother, Mrs. Mary I. Deuell, also survives.

PLANE OF DEATH IN MISSOURI SLAYING

This small, yellow plane, plunging crazily through northern Missouri skies, was described in a confession held by police as the scene of the slaying of Carl Bivens, 38, Brookfield, Mo., flying instructor, Indiana State Police said. Earnest Pletch, 29, a barnstorming aviator, had confessed shooting Bivens, landing the plane and removing his body, and taking off again. An officer is shown inspecting the plane at Bloomington, Ind.

BOMBERS AWAIT CONGRESSIONAL 'GO' SIGNAL

This American-made bombing plane, built for England, moved a short step closer to the European war zone when it was loaded onto this barge at Floyd Bennett Field, New York. The barge took it to Staten Island, N. Y., where it and several other bombers will remain pending house action on the embargo repeal measure passed by the senate.

before, so that for the first time Pan-America begins to seem real.
It has had a chastening effect on our troublesome Pacific neighbor, Japan, so that it may soon be possible to accomplish some kind of reasonable settlement in eastern Asia and restore peaceful cooperation in the Pacific area.
It is sound American policy to help along all these lines, publicly and privately.

IRRITABILITY AND TIREDNESS

One of the bits of knowledge wives and mothers have learned by experience is that if any serious matter is to be discussed, particularly something unpleasant that has occurred during the day, it is better not to discuss it until the husband and father has finished his evening meal. Of course, nothing serious or unpleasant should be discussed just before any meal as the upsetment interferes with appetite and digestion.
It is not alone for this reason—interfering with appetite or digestion—that the wife and mother postpones the discussion, but because she knows that a hungry man (or woman) is more apt to be cranky or irritable than one who is not hungry.
Physiologists tell us that hunger feelings are caused by the contraction or movements of the walls of the stomach. As the stomach becomes empty, the walls contract for a number of times—10 to 25—after which they become quiet for a while and then start the contractions again; then a quiet period, then contractions again. The "quiet" period lasts from 10 minutes to one hour in the child and from one to two hours in an adult. These contractions of the stomach walls are accompanied by more or less painful or uncomfortable feelings in the stomach. While these hunger pains may disturb an infant and wake him from a sound sleep, they pass unnoticed by the average healthy adult.
Instead of pain, the adult has feelings of weakness, tiredness, and disinclination to work. He doesn't know he is hungry until he sees or smells food.

Drs. Howard W. Haggard and Leon A. Greenberg in their book Diet and Physical Efficiency state: "The feeling of fatigue and irritability that shows the need for food is not relieved by rest but it is relieved by food." These research workers were able to relieve "tiredness" and get from 10 to 15 per cent more work from shoe workers by dividing the "usual" amount of food into five meals instead of three. Food was thus given before the tired, irritable feelings occurred.
The man returning to his home in the evening tired, irritable and despondent from a "hard day" at his work, finds no satisfaction or relief in rest obtained by waiting for his evening meal. Relief from irritability, fatigue, and depression comes only when the meal is eaten."

President Holds Answer as to Why National Unity Obtains on Matters of Vital Importance

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 30.—One big question stands out in the progress of the present session of Congress—and only one man, President Roosevelt, can give the answer.

The question is this: Why is it that national unity can be obtained on a vital matter of government policy and a vote recorded of six more than a majority of the United States Senate from among the Democrats alone and yet the same margin cannot be assured for domestic issues?

Few people may have noticed that in the roll call on the repeal of the embargo there were 55 Democrats and that the measure would have passed even if all the Republican votes had been cast against it. The same will not be true in the House of Representatives this week where Republican votes alone can assure passage. But the fact that the Democratic party was united sufficiently to muster 55 votes with help from senators who hitherto have been opposed to the administration is an achievement which is well worth analyzing.

In the first place the leadership on this issue was unexcelled. It was not a one-man affair. The Democrats had men like Senator Byrnes and Senator Connally assisting Leader Barkley, and running throughout the Democratic side was an earnest sort of harmony which placed the public welfare high above any other consideration.

In the next place, the attitude of the President himself was one of alert cooperation. Every minute that he was needed for assent to a slight change here or a shift in strategy on a particular point, he was ready and willing. There was neither arbitrariness nor stubbornness—his heart was bent on getting the ultimate result.

One cannot help wondering and asking why this same attitude on the part of all concerned is not possible on domestic issues. Again and again, the President has had available to his side and can still have available the services of outstanding members of the Senate, including Vice President Garner himself. Again and again, these Democrats of seasoned experience and shrewd political judgment have known just what had to be done to keep the party together.

What, then, has impaired harmony? The general belief is that a group of young men zealously interested in reform and without knowledge of practical politics and the processes of legislative adjustment and compromise have kept the President in a constant mood of inflexibility, if not outright hostility, picturing to him the conservative members of his party as "wicked" allies of the "wicked" world of finance and business, or else stirring the ire of a sometimes too sensitive group of older

Kea, New Zealand Bird, Said to Feed on Mutton

Thousands of feet above sea level, on the highest ranges of the Southern Alps of New Zealand, amid scenes of unsurpassed splendor, where the glittering snow-capped peaks of New Zealand's highest mountains pierce the celestial blue of the southern seas, in regions of eternal snow and ice, where the great blue-green glaciers roll almost imperceptibly down from the highest peaks, at the very limit of the stunted alpine growth, we find that strangest of strange and fascinating birds, the Kea.

For centuries this highly aberrant parrot fought the elements and finally won its battle, becoming perfectly adapted to its environment, writes Sydney Porter in Nature Magazine. Then man went to its mountain fastness and the Kea found an enemy against which the odds against survival seemed a million to one. Whether the Kea will become extinct is a matter of speculation. Some say that owing to the inaccessibility of its haunts it will never be shot out, but there are few spots now in the South Island of New Zealand where the sheep farmers have not penetrated and to the average sheep farmer the Kea is what a red rag is to a bull. Everything is being done to foster the idea that the Kea feeds on mutton. That this bird kills sheep, however, seems very doubtful. No one has ever seen a Kea kill a sheep. It is always the story of someone who knew someone else whose friend had seen it. No bird in the world is more malignantly libeled than the Kea.

Japanese Entertainers Licensed

Aviators, actresses and all other professional entertainers in Japan must be licensed before they can perform in public, according to a new rule inspired by the public safety department of the metropolitan police board in Tokyo. They must pass a strict examination of character, morals and qualifications before they are licensed, and they must be ready to show their license card, similar to that for automobile drivers, whenever required. Once an entertainer's license has been revoked it will not be renewed. Others affected by the regulations include story-tellers, wrestlers, boxers, professional baseball players, summo wrestlers, acrobats, manzai and naniwabushi singers.

You will find a difference of opinion whether it is better to be poorer but wiser, or richer and dumber.

Republican Candidates

CHARLES F. KAISER, JR.

As usual, heavy fighting is looked for on the town of Wawarsing front on Election Day, with the naming of supervisor the main objective of the battle. The Republican standard bearer this year is Charles F. Kaiser, Jr., genial police justice and attorney of the village of Ellenville. His opponent is Tuthill McDowell, who for the fourth time is seeking the favor of the voters. There were two opposing candidates in 1937, but although Kaiser polled a total vote exceeding that of the winner two years before the majority was against him. There are those who predict that things will be different this time.

It is nearly 10 years ago that Charles F. Kaiser came to Ellenville, following his graduation from Albany Law School and entered the offices of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray, where he served his clerkship. He was admitted to the bar in 1933 and began practice of law for himself. In August of that year he was appointed police justice, and was elected for a four-year term and in March, 1938, was again elected for a term of four years.

A son of Charles F. Kaiser, a retired contractor of Youngsville, Mr. Kaiser was educated in the Youngsville and Liberty schools, before taking up law at Albany Law School.

In February of this year he formed a partnership with Herman Cohen of Ellenville, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and of Cornell Law School, and they opened a law office at 99 Canal Street, the firm being Kaiser and Cohen.

Mr. Kaiser has taken an interest in the social and civic life of his town, since he became a resident there and by his pleasing personality and friendly attitude with a reputation for honesty and fair dealing has made a host of friends. He has been an active worker in the Boy Scout movement, has held office in the district organization of the Greenfield and Woodbourne, from which latter village fine new roads

GRANGE NEWS

Grangers to Meet

All Grange members in Ulster county are urged to attend the four-county meeting to be held in the gymnasium of the Newburgh High School, corner of Fullerton Avenue and South Street, on Saturday evening, November 4, at 7 o'clock sharp.

Ulster county will work the fourth degree. The Stone Ridge Grange degree team will do the work. Other counties participating are Orange, Sullivan, Rockland, Putnam and Westchester.

Charles M. Gardiner, the high priest of Demeter, the highest office in the grange, will be present to inspect the work.

The whole four degrees of grange work will be exemplified and any grange having candidates for any of the four degrees are urged to have them at the meeting to make the work more realistic.

Lead to Monticello and Liberty Junction with Route 17.

The present narrow, tortuous and dangerous road, in a very different state of repair, has been a source of agitation for several years, particularly since the completion of the new scenic Shawangunk Mountain Trail over the promises have been made and a couple of years ago there was some surveying activity, but that was all.

Mr. Kaiser has taken a personal interest in this project and last summer succeeded in arousing the interest of Senator Joseph R. Hanley, majority leader of the Senate, whose son and Mr. Kaiser attended law school together. Senator Mr. Kaiser at luncheon last August and afterward accompanied him on a trip over the Greenfield road.

As a member of the Board of Supervisors and with his acquaintance with those who wield considerable influence in government affairs at Albany, Mr. Kaiser's elected, he feels that he should, in advance this much needed piece of state road construction in Ulster county.

Then, too, as supervisor, Mr. Kaiser could be expected to run the affairs of his town with regard to the best interests and welfare of all its citizens, giving a clean and honest administration, one that could not justly be criticized in any department.

Bishop Bartlett To Meet Clergy at Holy Cross Church

The Rt. Rev. Frederick B. Bartlett, D. D., Episcopal bishop of Idaho, will visit Kingston tomorrow and meet with clergy and laymen of this area at the Church of the Holy Cross at 11 a. m.

Bishop Bartlett is in the east to conduct an extended series of conferences in New York city and surrounding areas, on behalf of a nation-wide movement for increased church interest and activity, inaugurated by the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, D. D., presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church.

Prior to the spring of 1939, Bishop Bartlett occupied two important positions in the Episcopal Church. He was, and continues to be, missionary bishop of Idaho, translated to that position in November, 1935, after four years as missionary bishop of North Dakota; and in addition he was executive secretary of the department of domestic mission of the church from 1932 to 1939. During that period in addition to the care of his own jurisdiction he had general oversight of all home missionary work, most of it located in the west, between the Mississippi river and the Rockies, but including also work among special groups, mountaineers of the Southern Highlands, negroes, American Indians, and work in Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands.

The bishop's special knowledge of the domestic field grew from a previous experience of 10 years, starting as general secretary in the church's field department, with general charge of work in the far west.

A native of Connecticut, Bishop Bartlett began his ministry in Oregon, riding a circuit of a thousand miles, after which he worked in Brooklyn for six years, before returning to the west.

In New York, Bishop Bartlett has shown particularly the interest that city churches are bound to have in the rural churches, due to the constant migration of church members from country to city. "This fact, as well as the normal missionary responsibility of the church to spread the gospel," Bishop Bartlett said, "calls for a much more informed church membership than is usually encountered. It calls too, for active concern in the rural field, as well as a sympathetic understanding of social and economic problems of country folks."

To Open Classes

WILLIAM SIMMONS

William Simmons, distinguished American baritone and teacher of singing and voice culture will open a part time studio of voice training at The Roger Baer Studios of this city.

Mr. Simmons is no stranger to Kingstonians, having sung here on many occasions.

As a teacher of voice Mr. Simmons' experience dates back many years, including instructor of master class at the Cleveland Institute of Music. In New York city his teaching developed vocalists such as Miss Har Onuki, Japanese soprano of the Royal Opera of Brussels, Belgium; Miss Mary Cohan, daughter of the famous American actor, George M. Cohan; Miss Adele Astaire, whom Mr. Simmons prepared for George Gershwin's show, "Lady Be Good"; Miss Frances Gershwin, who appeared in the New York Winter Garden; Miss Dorothy Dreelin, who appeared on the Dick Liebert radio program from the Music Hall in New York; Miss Gladys Tandler and many others who are now prominent radio stars.

Mr. Simmons has been proclaimed by both the music critics and the music-loving public to be one of the foremost baritones on the concert stage. Born in Albany of musical parents, his education has been obtained entirely in this country. He is winner of a scholarship at the Metropolitan School of Opera.

Mr. Simmons has made a great number of successful appearances, chief among which have been the New York Oratorio Society festival at which he sang the Bach Passion music, with the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conducting. In connection with symphonic orchestras he sang "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria". He created for the first time in this country the role of Don Quixote in De Falla's Opera.

Aside from appearing with the foremost orchestras he was featured soloist on the Atwater Kent hour for six years. Mr. Simmons' experience in the past is well prepared to give to young singers the most practical teaching of modern times, whether it be for concert stage, church work or radio.

Enrollment for voice students will open today. Instruction by Mr. Simmons will begin Friday, November 3. Further information may be had by calling the Roger Baer Studios.

If you're a brisk young housewife, you need a brisk young waistsleeve to match! Here's a trim frock, Marian's Pattern 9095. See it in the popular shirtwaist style, but with individual touches all its own. That high, doubled-peaked waistline will make your waist and hips recede in just two pieces—a quick dress-making job! There's extra above-the-waist style in soft bodice lines and a wide pointed collar, striking made in contrast, perhaps with cuffs to match. Or let the whole bodice be in contrast for a skirt and waist effect!

Pattern 9095 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 2 1/4 yards 35 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrast.

Proper Names for Members of Household

Dear Mrs. Post: In a household with a housekeeper and two servants, is it correct to call the housekeeper Mrs. Blank, the man who is butler-gardener-chauffeur and master of all jobs by his last name, and the cook and general housekeeper by her first name? And do half-grown children in the family use these same names for them?

Answer: "Yes," to each of these questions.

A Frank Question and a Frank Answer

Dear Mrs. Post: If you were the only one among all your friends who disapproved the custom of having yourself served first before a woman guest at your table, would you continue your own innate feeling of courtesy or would you do what the others were doing? I have an idea that most of my neighbors just follow suit without caring one way or the other. I was brought up very strictly and I can't be rude and unconscious of it! And yet it would be just as rude to let my neighbors think I am trying to bring good manners to an ill-mannered town. I wonder what you would do if you were in my place—could I win a woman guest older than I?

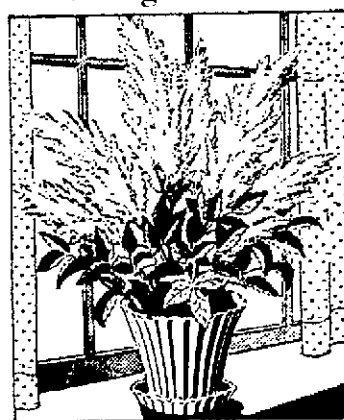

Answer: I personally would never serve myself first or have my chair held for me when any woman—no matter how young—was my guest. Even when Miss Kent, my assistant (who is not only young but in my employ, and could therefore quite properly be regarded as a young member of my family), lunches or dines with me, her chair is held and she is served first—always. Of course, if she lived under my roof—or even if she lunched with me every day as part of her work—and she were therefore not a guest, then my chair would be held for me and I should be served first. Feeling as strongly as I do that the first principle of courtesy is consideration for your guests, to be disconcerted according to your own standards is a far greater offense than being rude, believing yourself polite. As a matter of fact, this one particular problem is easily solved, since those who unthinkingly serve themselves first are not likely to notice who is being served—or how. Were I in your place I should have the dish of honor (the fresh untouched dish) presented to the guest of honor, whether the guest herself appreciates the honor or not. Do this as a matter of course and say nothing ever that criticizes any one or even shows that you think this detail of courtesy makes any more difference than many of the quite adaptable details of service.

Grow Blooming Plants To Brighten Home

Favorites Easy to Raise

How gorgeous this astilbe japonica! Seeing one like it in a friend's window, will you wish too late you had started an astilbe, too?

Be forehanded! Now is the time to pot astilbe roots to enjoy this winter the pretty foliage, the feathery masses of tiny flowers—whitish, pink or red.

And this favorite plant thrives with very little care. Pot in any sandy loam, water well, and when buds begin to appear keep the pot in a saucer of water.

The astilbe likes an even temperature—about 60 degrees during the day, not lower than 50 degrees at night.

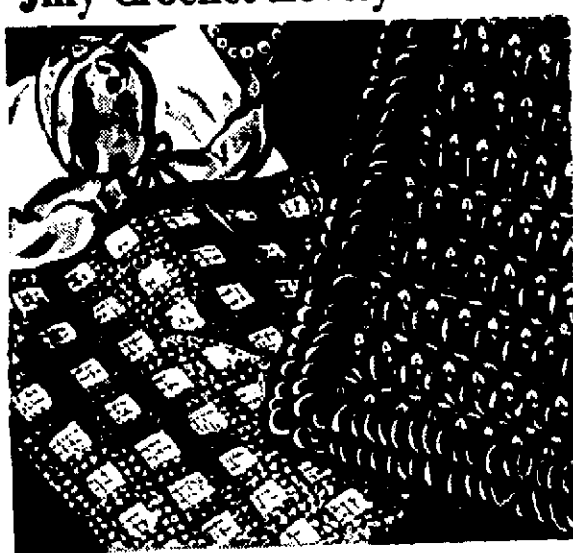

Other flowers, foliage plants, too, are easy to grow if you know their likes and dislikes.

Geraniums love sun, but ferns sulk in direct winter sunlight. Gloxinias hate water on their leaves, an aspidistra is all the better for a good leaf-washing.

In our 32-page booklet you will find complete instructions for raising many kinds of foliage plants: ferns, bulbs, vines, blooming plants. Has information on fertilizers, watering, repotting, pests. Tells of material to grow in water, window boxes, bracket pots.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of MAKING PLANTS AND FLOWERS GROW INDOORS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

PORT EWEN

Scouts Attend Game

Port Ewen, Oct. 30—On Saturday 34 boys of Boy Scout Troop 26 under the leadership of Scoutmaster Francis E. Palen attended the Army-Ursinus football game at West Point. The troop left the village at 11:30 a. m., returning at 7 p. m. Transportation was furnished by the Rev. F. W. Coutant, Percy McConnell, Harry Van Ormer, William Clark, Joseph Beichert, Mrs. Basil Potter, and Francis E. Palen of the village; and Harry Kronm of St. Remy.

Evening Service

Port Ewen, Oct. 30—Another of the monthly special evening services was held last night in the Reformed Church. The opening portion of the service was a period of congregational singing, led by Leslie Herring of Ulster Park. The Rev. Mr. Berens then told of his visit to the Reformed Church mission stations in Jackson county, Kentucky, where since 1900 the Reformed Church has developed the work, providing schools, churches and welfare services. These evening services have come to be an integral part of the life of the church. The date of the next one will be announced later.

Village Notes

Port Ewen, Oct. 30—This evening at 8 o'clock in the Reformed Church house there will be a Union Halloween party in which the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Reformed Church and the Epworth League of the Methodist Church will participate.

The Drum Corps will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the fire house.

The Men's Community Club will play darts tomorrow evening in the Reformed Church house at 8 o'clock. Their guests will be the team from the Kingston Avenue Methodist Club.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles Neice. Mrs. Ed Hotelling and Mrs. Neice will be the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ostrander have returned to their home in Valden after a week's visit with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Terpenning and Mrs. Phoebe Ostrander motored to New York for the day last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rowe and son, Richard, Jr., of West Hempstead, L. I., were week-end guests of Mrs. Rowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Launsbach.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Freese and family of Kingston called Saturday on Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ellsworth.

Mrs. Francis Palen and Mrs. William Buddenhagen attended the Army-Ursinus football game Saturday at West Point.

MEN LIKE GIRLS WITH "OOMPH"

Years ago it was the "it" girl—last year the "glamor" girl and today it's the girl with "oomph"—and pep who attracts men and has all the dates, fun and success in life. Remember no man likes a dull, cross, nervous woman!

Perhaps all you need is a good "woman's" tonic. If so, try famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will help loosen female functional distress, calm moody nerves and give you glorious new energy and pep by promoting better digestion and assimilation of your food—by helping build up your physical resistance.

Recent medical tests have proved Pinkham's Compound to be one of the most effective "woman's" tonics. WELL WORTH TRYING.

Chapter 20 Breakfast Guest

TWELVE sparkling stones lay on the desk in the study, divested at last of the hard coating of wax which had dimmed their luster and concealed their brilliant beauty.

"On a snap guess, I'd say they're worth fifty thousand dollars," the District Attorney said.

Tuck drew a deep breath. "We've accomplished something," she said. "We've made the first grade."

Bunny had a tinge of bright color in her cheeks. "I'm glad," she said happily. "Somehow it seems to clear the air. There's something tangible to fasten to. Somewhere to start from."

"And," said Michael, "a million questions to answer. Who put the diamonds there? Are they Murchison's or did he steal them, and hide them where they'd never be brought out as evidence against him? Or is there some other queer business wrapped up in them?"

"I shouldn't be surprised," his father said dryly. "If, from what you've told me of her, his wife didn't have a hand in any thievery that went on."

"You mustn't be prejudiced, dad. Wait until you get a look at her. She's very good looking."

Tuck sniffed, but her heart was not in it. There was, for the first time, a hint of some serious emotion in her eyes. "I don't just like it," she said. "I don't think I really believed any of it before. Now I know some of it's true. It makes me wonder."

The District Attorney put his hand for a moment on her bright hair. He frowned. "How would you like to go down to the lake for awhile?" he inquired. "The cottage is empty. It's a nice lake."

Tuck leaned back and stared up at him. "A lake? I hear there's a new pier, and regattas and the like. Dancing, perhaps."

"I think that's a fine idea, dad," Michael said enthusiastically. "I could drive down week-ends and the girls could stay there all the time."

"I like it here," Tuck said pointedly.

"No doubt you do, my dear. But I'm afraid they'll be wanting the house for a new professor. In fact, I heard something to that effect today."

"That's just too bad, Father Forrester. Bunny, do you want to go to the lake?"

"No," said Bunny flatly.

"And neither do I. So, since we've taken the house... since we were inveigled into taking the house for three months, we'll just stay right here. And that's settled." She smiled wickedly at him.

"But, look here, Tuck," Michael began. "We've done what we came out to do. The diamonds are found."

She shook her head. "Nothing doing, you two. Your motives are as clear as crystal, and we know what's bothering you. You think that since this has turned out to be a real honest to goodness crime, instead of just a simple little mystery, you'll get us out of here, and have all the fun to yourselves. Well, we're not going. At least, I'm not going. They're not going to murder me, and they're not going to murder Bunny nor Michael. We haven't done anything as far as they know... wherever they are. There isn't the slightest danger, and there's a tremendous lot of things I want to know. As I said before, I'm staying. Bunny?"

"Of course. If we must die, we die together."

"The case won't be in my hands, my dear," the District Attorney said, abandoning all pretense. "The Commissioner will take charge now, and put detectives to work again. You've done all you can. Anything else will be impeding the course of justice."

Tuck looked at him critically. "Detectives, poof," she said. "Still, that last was a very, very good line. Impeding the course of justice. It certainly was. How do you think those things up, Father Forrester? They're simply wonderful!"

Woman's Place

"It's no use, dad. She's on. We stay," said Michael ruefully.

"The Commissioner will be very glad to have us," Tuck explained to her father-in-law carefully. "He'll do everything he can to make our visit here enjoyable. I'm sure he will."

"I wouldn't put it past him," he said gruffly. "He'll use your inquisitiveness and your boldness to good advantage."

"Now, is that nice?" She patted his hand in swift contrition. "I'm sorry, I'm just terribly sorry, but I'm not sorry enough to go away and never find out anything more. I believe firmly that woman's place is in the home."

"I think you're unnecessarily alarmed," said Bunny. "No one really suspects us. The other night at the party we were accepted perfectly naturally. In any event, it doesn't seem possible that any of those people are really guilty of... that they know..." she stopped.

Michael was regarding her thoughtfully. The District Attorney spoke to Tuck again. "You haven't even a good dog?"

"No, but we've a perfectly lovely cat, Father Forrester."

He rose. "I'll give up, however unwillingly," he said. "But you must have a talk with the Commissioner, Michael, and tell him everything. Everything."

He repeated firmly, looking Michael in the eye. "This is out of my department. And I've got my doubts," he said as a parting shot. "Whether he'll want you here at all."

"He will," Tuck replied sweetly. "If you don't go poisoning his mind."

Michael dropped into his chair at the breakfast table next morning, with a cheerful remark about the state of the weather. He was answered in kind. There was not the slightest evidence that mystery and even crime were in the air.

"Everybody happy?" he inquired solicitously.

"Of course," Tuck replied. She straightened the aster in the bowl on the table. "Why not?"

Charlotte Jean came in to report that a gentleman had called to see Mr. Forrester. "He says it's important, he'll wait," she repeated the message, but Michael had gone. He came back in a moment, followed by Professor Jared Devoe, who was rubbing his hands.

"Mr. Devoe called on a little matter of business," Michael explained to Tuck as she held out her hand to her guest, "and I insisted that he have coffee with us."

"Why, that's lovely," Tuck replied. "We're glad to have you, Mr. Devoe. Michael, do hand me another cup from the cabinet, will you?"

Explanation

DEVOE bowed to Bunny and turned back to Tuck. "I'm sure I had no intention of intruding this way, Mrs. Forrester, it was just... I assure you I didn't dream of your breakfasting so early, and I saw Mr. Forrester out in the garden, and wanted to have a little talk with him."

"But you must have a cup of coffee first, Michael hasn't had any, and his mind will be terribly foggy until he does." She smiled at her husband, smoothed down her crisp yellow linen frock, and picked up the silver coffee pot. "Cream and sugar, Mr. Devoe?"

He sat down, still with an air of hesitation, in the chair Michael had brought up for him. "Very well, then... just cream, please. It is very kind of you, I..."

he laughed deprecatingly. "The fact of the matter is, I haven't had any breakfast yet, although I rose early. I—I had rather forgotten about it."

"That is not a thing I'm at all likely to do," Michael replied. He took his cup from Tuck's outstretched hand.

"Nor I, ordinarily, however..." he sipped his coffee, set down the cup and turned to Bunny. He surveyed her cool green dress and her smooth dark hair with evident approval. "I hope you are enjoying your stay on the campus, Miss Temple?"

Bunny's eyes, at his full-lidded heavy glance, took on a look that Tuck always thought of as "fathomless." There was a veil before their gray depths as she answered.

"Very much, thank you."

"You must try to provide you with adequate entertainment," he went on. "There is very little to do out here on the campus. However, there are some interesting woodland paths hereabout," he said ingratiatingly. "Do you care for walking?"

"Not particularly," said Bunny coolly.

Devoe took his rebuff calmly. "My mother and Mrs. Murchison will perhaps be calling on you within a day or two, Mrs. Forrester. That is..."

he turned to Michael with what he may have considered to be an engaging air of frankness. "I think I shall just discuss my errand this morning here in the presence of the ladies. After all, it is possible that an explanation of some sort will be due Mrs. Forrester... that is, if my mother fails to call to see you. She may perhaps find herself unable to perform any social duties. It—it may become impossible."

Bunny buttered a square of toast leisurely. Michael frowned in polite attention.

"I'm sure we shall understand," Tuck murmured at random. "Isn't your mother very well, Mr. Devoe?"

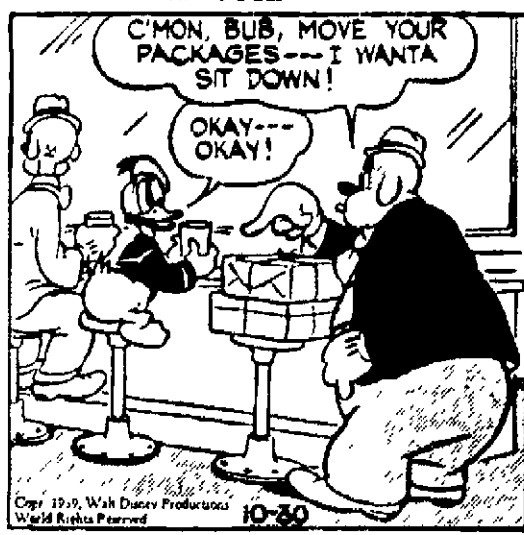

He put his coffee cup down on the table carefully. "It is not that," he replied. "I speak, of course, in riddles. I might say simply that she is ill and ask you to forgive her. But I prefer to tell the exact truth to you, since I intend to consult Mr. Forrester, as a lawyer, on the matter. My mother, he said after a moment's pause, "is rather upset at this time. Her mental equilibrium is a little... shall we say... disturbed?"

Oh, temporarily, of course," he hastened to finish, perhaps at the astonishment in Tuck's face. "We are undergoing rather a trying time at our house. Mrs. Murchison is being very brave, but the strain is telling on her, too."

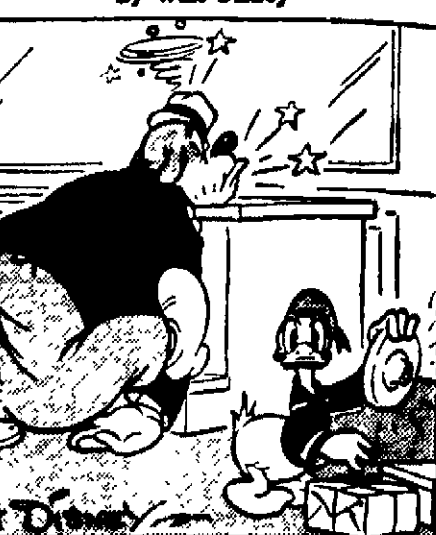

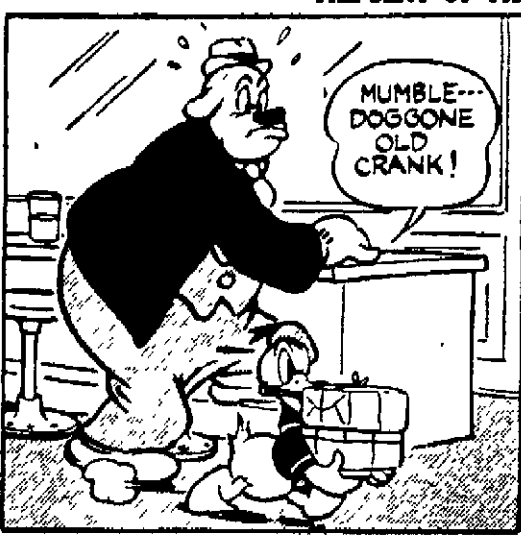

"You have had bad news of some kind," Mr. Devoe? Tuck broke the awkward silence again. Michael did not seem disposed to speak, and Bunny was quite obviously determined not to.

To Hold Rally

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, the Republican committees from the Seventh and Eighth wards will hold a rally in Webster's Hall, 51 Broadway, with prominent speakers to address the gathering.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of the Methodist Church will be held Tuesday at 7:30 to elect delegates to the conference. The meeting will be held in Grace Methodist Church, Newburgh, November 2, at 10 a. m.

Union college students definitely favored Britain, France and Poland in a poll taken in Daily Chapel. The allies got 406 votes in a "popularity contest" which yielded 30 for Germany, 96 students said they would enlist at the outbreak of a war in which the United States was called on to fight on a foreign soil, 278 would await the draft, 152 would refuse to fight.

Drouth has prevented fall planting of more than 600,000 young trees on state reforestation plantations in northern St. Lawrence and Franklin counties, District Forester Walter E. Pratt reports. They will be set out next spring, Pratt adds.

No Hope for Peace

London, Oct. 30 (AP)—The British government tonight indicated there was not "the slightest prospect of reaching any settlement" with Nazi Germany. This was the government view as set forth in a statement dealing with German concentration camps.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—The stock market today showed a slightly lower territory.

In dealings that indicated a turnover of about 600,000 shares for the full session, leaders were off fractions near the final hour with the ticker tape frequently motionless.

Stocks behind the greater part of the day—some eventually revived moderately—included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Anaconda, Western Union, International Nickel, Great Northern and Texas Corp.

Ahead at one time or another were Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, General Electric and United Aircraft.

Backward in the curb were Lockheed, Aluminum of America, Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Lake Shore and Gulf Oil.

Industrials, Rails

Down Last Week

Industrial and rail stocks opened firm Saturday, but reacted the second hour. Loss for the day, in Dow-Jones averages was 34 point for the industrials, which closed at 153.12, while rails eased off 17, to 34.43. For the week as a whole industrial stocks dropped 74 point over the preceding Saturday and rails lost 35 point. Utilities were off .09 point, to 26.12, Saturday, but for the week showed a slight gain.

Saturday's market was a disappointment to many. Volume was down to 481,870 shares, while instead of stocks staging an advance on the passage of the Senate bill doing away with the embargo on arms what action there was was in the other direction.

There were indications last week that industrial production was leveling off, although distribution appeared to be gaining in volume. For the first time in several months steel output failed to show the usual increase there were substantial orders for first quarter deliveries. Private construction appears to be heading upward.

Auto output was ahead of the previous week and by a good margin exceeded a year ago although labor trouble handicapped on leading manufacturer. Carloadings were up more than seasonally and gained 22 per cent over last year. The rush of orders in the chemical industry, which started in September and has continued to date is expected to produce fourth quarter earnings which will be close to the best levels the industry has known. So far war orders have not been a leading factor in the boom.

Home Bureau Has Countywide Tour; About 75 Attend

The kitchen-living room tour of a number of Ulster county homes, conducted Friday by the Home Bureau, turned out a great success, 75 persons joining in the tour. The county generally was represented, the Woodstock unit leading the list with 15 of its members attending.

Home economic classes of Kingston and Marlborough High School each sent four members to represent them on the trip, reporting later to their classes.

Object of the trip was to show improvements and desirable arrangements that have been made in kitchens and living rooms with the Home Bureau cooperating, in farm home around the county.

The first house visited was that of Mary Bryant, at Lomontville, one of the old stone houses. From there the pilgrims followed Trooper Reilly to Accord, where cars were parked at the Rochester Reformed Church and a visit made to the H. M. Eppes home nearby, where living and dining rooms were first to be arranged in the Accord unit 10 years ago.

After lunch at the church the David DuBois house at Forest Glen was visited, where there was much of interest. The next stop was Modena where homes of Lester Arnold and J. E. Hasbrouck were visited where there were more examples of what can be done to beautify and make more convenient kitchens and living rooms.

The next stop was at Clintonville, at the home of Winfield Jenkins where there was evidence of much thought in convenient arrangement of the kitchen, right location of supplies and a properly constructed kitchen closet. The final visit was at the home of Mrs. Harry Sutton, Clintonville, where extra shelves put into a cupboard and made from an old book case had done much to add to its utility and convenience.

Dr. Braithwaite Dies

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 30 (AP)—Dr. Frederick G. Braithwaite, 71, associate medical director of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of New York, died today at his home here after a long illness.

One ton of dynamite, declared "unsuitable and unfit for use" after three-years' storage, was burned in the middle of a 40-acre lot outside the city of Syracuse. A powder expert performed the job secretly at a cost of about $60. The dynamite was purchased originally for road work and was valued by Nelson F. Pitts, city engineer, at "a couple of hundred dollars."

War - Without - Battles Quiet Today; Whereabouts of Flint One of European Mysteries

(By The Associated Press)

The surface quiet of Europe's war without battles went unreflected today.

Armies massed along the western front were kept inactive by Germany and the French-British allies as they pursued their conflict with less dramatic weapons of propaganda, diplomacy and blockade.

Europe showed particular interest in the neutral roles of the United States and the Soviet Union.

British and French newspapers expressed gratitude over the United States Senate vote for repeal of the arms embargo but a French deputy warned France against depending too heavily on American war supplies.

The deputy, Henry De Kerillis, urged wider production at home as protection against draining French gold to the United States and the possibility that American industry would be busy filling British orders.

Europe watched to see what the House would do now with the neutrality legislation.

Anxious over Russian-Italian rivalry for leadership in the Balkans, the nations of southeast Europe held hopes a definite statement of Russian aims might be made tomorrow when the Supreme Soviet meets in Moscow.

Reports that Russia supported Bulgarian claims against Rumania for return of the Dobruja district on the Black Sea were the crux of the situation in that part of Europe.

Italian influence was understood to have the upper hand in Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Air raid warnings sounded in London and East Kent but no raiders appeared and the information ministry started an investigation of why the alarms were sounded.

Britain called this "grievance week" because of the growing chorus of complaints against wartime administration at home and because of the numerous critical questions scheduled for answering by Prime Minister Chamberlain's government.

Opposition leaders expressed intention of focussing attention on the government's powers to restrict freedom of speech and press in wartime.

Whereabouts of the United States freighter City of Flint remained unknown. Though German officials were silent, the vessel apparently was on her way from Murmansk, with a German prize crew in command, heading toward a Nazi port.

British naval experts acknowledged it would be difficult to catch the ship which Germany captured as she was carrying a cargo to England.

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—Alexander C. Kirk, American charge d'affaires at Berlin, called the state department today that the German foreign office had informed him orally that it still was without definite information concerning the whereabouts of the City of Flint.

From no other of its sources could the state department obtain any word of the vessel.

ness going. Mr. Kaye said for a year and a half he had worked to keep the plant in operation. Senator Wagner had become interested in the village, attempts had been made to interest government money in the project, the plant had been temporarily operated but now it was no longer advisable to attempt to go on and he said it had become necessary for the court to order a sale of the assets. He expressed a hope that the villagers who had lived there and worked there for many years would be able to retain their homes.

Manor House Offered

Offered first was the Manor House, the home occupied by the Schwarzwalders family. It was sold to Louis Berglas of 8 Fulton street, Brooklyn, a manufacturer, for a summer home for $5,300.

The Social Hall was struck off to Phoenix Post, 950, American Legion, for $475, and will be used as a meeting and social place.

The village store, now operated by Ralph Bush, was sold to L. T. Keaton of Chichester for $1,600.

Some of the best houses in the village with all improvements went for less than $1,000 and as the sale went on it was observed that when a bid was made there was inquiry as to whether the bidder was a tenant. If the bidder was a tenant other bidders withdrew higher bids or ceased to bid so the present occupant might retain his home. More than half the houses were sold to Chichester people.

Checks vs. Cash

A rather unusual fact was that the out of town bidders paid their deposit with certified checks while the people of Chichester paid in cash. Apparently the occupants of the premises came to the sale prepared to bid up to a certain amount for the property and came armed with the cash for the 20 per cent deposit required. In one instance where the tenant had been compelled to bid more than she had anticipated the auctioneer took her cash and informed her to bring in the balance of the deposit when it could be withdrawn from the bank.

Since the closing of the factory most of the men have sought work elsewhere. Several were given work of a temporary nature on the highway by the county, others have sought work at Lackawanna and a few have been receiving relief. Practically all of the families have remained in the village and it was stated that there were but three vacant houses where families had moved away.

Bids were as follows:

Parcel 1, residential building site on main road, Harold Bakerman, 1 Park Place, New York city, $100.

Parcel 2, building site on main highway, Harold Bakerman, 1 Park Place, New York, $100.

Soldiers Routed

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—One hundred twenty soldiers were routed from their beds early today by a fire in the attic of a 900-foot stone and brick barracks building on Governor's Island, military post in New York harbor. The barracks houses about 2,700 men of the 16th infantry, but the fire was confined to a corner occupied by Company C.

Former Red Says National Maritime Soviet - Sponsored

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—A former member of the communist party testified today that the National Maritime Union (CIO) was a direct outgrowth of several Soviet-sponsored organizations and that its leader, Joseph Curran, was intimate with communist party leaders.

Questioned before the Dies committee about Curran's denial on Saturday that he was acquainted with several alleged communists, William C. McCuiston, 38-year-old seaman of Frederick, Md., declared bluntly:

"Curran was lying. That was all."

Under expulsion from the NNU for a total of 12 years, McCuiston testified that he formerly was a member or officer of three maritime organizations which originated in Soviet Russia. The NNU, he added, developed directly from those organizations and "the same guys are in the leadership of the NNU today."

McCuiston testified that Curran "knows of" Harry Jackson, a San Francisco native, who "has direct connections with the communists," and who "bragged to me that he and Torry Ray recruited Bridges (Harry Bridges, CIO west coast maritime leader) into the Communist party."

Bridges was branded a Communist by McCuiston as he described the part the party played in a rally for seamen at Madison Square Garden in New York during a strike in December, 1936.

The Joiners

News of Interest to Fraternal Organizations

Mount Horeb Chapter No. 75, R. A. M., will hold its regular stated convocation on Wednesday evening, November 1, at 7:30 o'clock in the new Masonic Temple, 31 Albany avenue. The Past Master degree will be conferred on a class of four candidates. A large attendance is requested.

All Rebekahs wishing to go by bus to attend the homecoming of District Deputy Elvira Hill at Saugerties, Tuesday evening, November 7, at the Odd Fellows Hall, Saugerties, are asked to make reservations on or before Saturday, November 4, with Miss Matilda Hahn, telephone 798-R or Newton Van Etten, 2688-J.

Toast of Town

Long Beach, Calif., Oct. 30 (AP)—Clyde Schlieper and Wes Carroll, the only men ever to live for a month in the sky, were the toast of the town today. The 25-year-old fliers returned to mother earth yesterday afternoon after 30 days and six hours aloft. Their record of 728 hours far eclipsed the former standard of 654 hours, 33 minutes established by Fred and Al Key near Meridian, Miss., in 1935. They winged past that mark last Thursday.

Bund Being Investigated

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—The German-American Bund and its leader, Fritz Kuhn, are being investigated by federal authorities, U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill said today. Cahill declined to divulge details, but said allegations "of a very serious nature" had been made against the organization. James Wheeler-Hill, Bund secretary, has been before the federal grand jury several times, it was learned.

Thanksgiving Bill

Washington, Oct. 30 (AP)—Senator Bridges (R-N. H.) is going to ask Congress "to end all the confusion about Thanksgiving Day created by President Roosevelt." He is drafting a bill, he said today, to make the last Thursday of November "a public holiday that is standardized throughout the United States." Two Republican House members—Case of South Dakota and Reed of Illinois—have made similar proposals.

Pendergast, O'Malley

Kansas City, Oct. 30 (AP)—Tom Pendergast, one-time boss of the Kansas City Democratic machine, and R. Emmett O'Malley, former state insurance superintendent, were named today in indictments returned by a county grand jury investigating settlement of the Missouri fire insurance rate case.

About the Folks

Mrs. Edna L. Kennedy of 20 Furnace street entertained over the week-end Miss Mary Lacy and Judge Arthur Jay Lacy of Detroit.

Sabotage Charge

U. S. Commissioner James J. McCabe announced a hearing for a man identified as Joseph J. Demers (above), of West Warwick, R. I., who was secretly arraigned in connection with the damaging of the mechanism of a torpedo at the torpedo station, Newport, R. I. Demers pleaded innocent.

Seminary Employee Is Wounded in Hip While Out Hunting

Valentine Sprig, 46, an employee on the seminary farm at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, was brought to the Benedictine Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment for a wound made by a .22 calibre rifle bullet, which had entered his back just above and at the rear of the left hip.

Sprig was accidentally shot while returning with a fellow employee, William Whalen, 21, from a hunting trip on the seminary property.

Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg, who with Trooper Reilly investigated the accident, said that they were told that the two men were returning home across the fields when they came to a stone wall. Sprig, who carried a shotgun, went over the wall first. Whalen, who had a .22 rifle, followed him, but his foot slipped and the rifle was discharged, the bullet entering Sprig's back. Whalen claimed that the rifle was not cocked at the time of the accident.

Sprig was reported to be in fair condition this morning. It was understood that the wound was not serious, barring possible infection and that the bullet would be removed today.

Two Hurt in Crash Near Marbletown Sunday Afternoon

Mrs. Everett Grant of 124 Wilbur avenue and her son, Everett, Jr., 14, were reported in apparently fair condition at the Kingston Hospital this morning, where they were taken for treatment following an accident on Route 209 Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Grant and her son were riding in a car operated by Frank Churchwell of 124 Wilbur avenue, when it crashed into the rear of a car operated by William Klein of 245 W. 1st street, who had stopped his car to turn into the Marbletown Cemetery grounds.

Mrs. Grant suffered injuries to her nose and kneecap and Everett had a lacerated knee. Churchwell's car was badly damaged. Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg and Trooper Reilly investigated the accident.

Ulster County Shows Registration Gains

A total registration increase of 2,139 in Ulster county is reported by the Board of Elections in announcing the figures of the city and county districts. There is an increase in registration in both city and county.

The registration for the county exclusive of the city of Kingston for 1939 is 42,280 and in the city of Kingston 14,429 for a grand total of 56,709. In 1938 the registration in the county outside the city of Kingston was 40,382 and in the city of Kingston 14,188 for a grand total of 54,570.

Snow Cruiser on 'Keel'

Lima, O., Oct. 30 (AP)—A giant snow cruiser, built for an Antarctic expedition but trapped in a small country ditch, was brought to an even keel today and workmen continued their slow job of jacking it to a level from which the monster could move forward onto an adjoining pasture for repairs. The 75,000-pound machine, constructed in Chicago for Admiral Richard E. Byrd, tumbled from a bridge into Pine Run at nearby Gomer Saturday, landing on its side in mud and water after an eight-foot fall. The cruiser was being taken from Chicago to Boston.

Council Officers Named

At a meeting of the Student Council held Friday afternoon, Fred Renn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Renn of 78 Henry street of this city, was elected president of this organization. Other officers elected were Lillian Benjamin, first vice-president; Elvora Benson, second vice-president; Janet Vetoskie, secretary; Joseph Winter, treasurer; and Richard Ransom, manager of the basketball team for the coming season.

of trading it for gasoline if necessary.

"Bivens then stated he was withdrawing from our plan to steal the plane and also said that he was going to land the plane and turn me in."

"I told him that he was as much responsible for the plan as I and that he was not going to double-cross me."

"At this time Bivens was in the front seat of the plane and I was in the rear. Both of us were handling the dual controls. After we had argued for a while Bivens reached back at me with his right arm and pulled me forward."

"As he pulled me forward my body pushed the control stick forward and the plane went into a power dive. We grappled for a few seconds and I realized if we kept on fighting we would crash."

Fires Two Shots

"I pulled the revolver" and fired two shots, both of which hit him in the back of the head."

His body slumped forward on the controls, causing the plane to continue its dive. I reached forward and pulled his body back away from the controls and after a few seconds I got the plane straightened out.

Fifteen minutes later, he continued, he "sighted a suitable landing field," and landed. He taxied near a fence, removed Bivens' body, and "took off again."

"I didn't know what to do then, but finally I decided to fly back to Frankfort and crash the plane against my father's barn, killing myself, her, then I got over Frankfort I couldn't force the ship into a crash."

Shortly before he was removed from jail in Indiana, he visited for nearly 20 minutes with his parents. Deputy Sheriff James Martin said the parents told their son, "try to make your peace with God; that's the only thing left."

Petch also was identified as the "Flying Lochinvar" who took a 17-year-old Vernon, Ill., girl on a romantic 5-day flying trip through Missouri and Illinois last summer, ending her then marriage. Releasing her at Charleston, Mo., he later was arrested in Mississippi and charged with stealing the plane from a Frankfort, Ind., airport owner. He was free under bond.

Three Arraigned In Local Court On Minor Charges

James Newton, 42, of 22 Lancaster street, Albany, who was arrested Sunday morning by John B. Rafferty of Hotel Ulster for creating a disturbance at the latter place was given a suspended sentence of 180 days and ordered to get out of town by City Judge Matthew V. Cahill this morning in city court. Newton was committed to the county jail on a disorderly conduct charge, following his arrest, for arraignment today.

Edward Bradford, 44 of 60 Cedar street, who was arrested on Broadway Sunday on a public intoxication charge, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or spend 10 days in the county jail if the fine is not paid.

August Hansen of Brooklyn, who said he was employed at Kerhonkson, was also fined $10 on a public intoxication charge. He was arrested late Saturday afternoon on East Strand.

Judge Cahill also said that a jail sentence of 10 days would replace the fine, if it were not paid.

State Police Investigate Report of Airplane Crash

Investigating a report that what appeared to be an airplane which had crashed in the mountains back of West Saugerties had been seen by residents of that section, troopers made an investigation Sunday afternoon, but without success.

Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Keefe and Corporal Eggleston of Catskill drove as far as they could up the Platt Clove road. Through glasses it was possible to see some object, far up in the mountain, but whether or not it was an airplane could not be determined.

Detroit May Take Olympics If Finland Gives Up Plans

New York, Oct. 30.—The 1940 Olympics became an international guessing game today because of an announcement from Olympic headquarters in Switzerland that they might be transferred from Helsinki, Finland, to Detroit.

Nobody could be sure what it was all about, inasmuch as Finland still is planning to hold the games and Detroit has not asked for them recently, and isn't sure it wants them on such short notice.

There perhaps has been no more startling "communique" since Europe's war began than the proclamation of the international Olympic committee in Lausanne yesterday that the 1940 games would be held in Detroit if Finland renounced its rights to stage them.

The committee said all national Olympic committees had been polled as to whether they would send teams to Helsinki and that if their replies were negative, as many were expected to be, Finland would renounce and clear the way for removal of the Olympics to the United States where many of the neutral nations were certain to compete.

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, said "there must be some mistake. The committee would not award the games to Detroit without consulting us and we've heard nothing about it."

In Detroit Mayor Richard Reading, with great civic enthusiasm, declared his city would "welcome the games with open arms." But his own chairman of a committee to obtain the Olympics in 1944, Frederick C. Matthal, expressed surprise at the action and added: "There isn't sufficient time to make plans for a bang-up Olympiad and a track meet without France, Great Britain and Germany in the contention would not be much of an attraction. Finland has a tremendous investment in the games and it may mean bankruptcy for someone if they are not held."

Helsinki, Oct. 30 (AP)—Erik Frencckell, vice mayor of Helsinki and head of the city's Olympic games committee, declared today, "Finland has no intention of giving up the Olympic games. If the war continues until next year, the committee naturally will be obliged to meet to consider the possibility of maintaining its original plan."

Monty, quarterback of the Fordham Bears, intercepted a Kingston pass on his own 40 and bounded along to Kingston's 35, putting the visitors in position for their first score. The Bears hit the line for gains that brought them to the Wasp's four, and here Monty passed to Perrone for the first touchdown.

Again in the fourth period, Monty gave the Bears their second touchdown when he dashed around right end from the 11 yard marker and scored. Then he kicked for the extra point, making the score 13-0.

Gattois came through for the third six pointer in the same frame, climaxing a 56 yard plunge by the Bears who crashed their way down to the Yellow Jacket 20 yard line. From this spot, he broke through tackle, evading a flock of Wasps, and crossed the goal line.

Once during the game, the Jackets got to the six yard line, but the Fordham gridders held tightly and prevented the home club from getting out of the scoreless class for the day.

Vince Stoll's pass to Nylassy, an offside penalty and Gil Kelder's burst through tackle gave the locals a first down on Fordham's 26. The Tiano passed to Kelder on the 16. Gil made a spectacular one-hand catch and ran the ball up to the six. Trying to score on aerials, the Jackets failed and were driven back to the 18 stripe.

Yesterday's defeat was the second for the Wasps, who bowed to the Bronx Spartans a week ago, after winning four in a row over the (2). Newburgh Recreation and the Hudson A. C. Next Sunday, the Port Jervis Cops will be at the municipal stadium to meet the Jackets for the Christmas Cheer Committee Fund.

The lineups:

White Eagles Will Meet Tonight, 7:30

Manager Frank Wojciechowski of the White Eagle basketball team has called a meeting for tonight at 7:30 at the Delaware avenue hall. Measurements for uniforms will be taken, and plans made to purchase other equipment.

The Indians have their own explanation of Indian summer. Dr. Earl Bates, adviser on Indian extension, New York State College of Agriculture, says the red man believes that after a summer growing season the wide-awake Indian farmer starts his harvesting while the lazy one says: "It is still a long time until cold weather comes. Then the great spirit sends Jack Frost to stir up the lazy bones. Lazy bones pray for another chance. Then the spirit sends what the white man calls 'Indian summer.' The red man calls it 'lazy farmer's second chance.'"

Noticing to creditors: RODIE, ROBERT R.—Pursuant to order of Surrogate Harry H. Flemming, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against Robert R. Rodie, late of the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, deceased, to exhibit the same, with the vouchers therefor, to the undersigned at 11 Thomas St., Kingston, N.Y., on or before the 27th day of January, 1940.

PRINCETON SETS BROWN BACK ON FUMBLE, WINS 26-12

Brown Captain John McLaughry saved disaster in the first quarter of the Princeton game by diving on this fumble and recovering the pigskin after mauling the pass from center. Brown's Bronslaw Stepczyk (52) rushed in to protect McLaughry as Tigers Thatcher Longstretch (41), Conrad Balentine (65) and Bruce Wilson (47) swooped down on the ball and threw Brown for a five-yard toss. The game was at Princeton and the Tigers won 26-12.

Next Saturday Will Start College Football 'Payoff'

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—The "payoff" month of the college football season—November—starts this week with just the kind of games that can be expected in the more important half of the campaign.

The first half of the battle for national honors, winding up last Saturday, produced about the results that could be expected. There were innumerable "upsets" at the start, dividing in number as the teams began to show real strength and weakening. The end of October found not more than eleven unbeaten and untied survivors still in the race for the mythical national crown.

Starting part two, the "major" unbeaten and untied teams are: East—Cornell, Duquesne, Catholic; south—Tennessee, Kentucky; midwest—Notre Dame, Michigan; southwest—Texas A. and M.; Rocky Mountain—Colorado Mines; Pacific coast—Oregon State, San Jose (Cal.) State.

Tied but still undefeated are Dartmouth and Georgetown, in the east; Tulane, North Carolina and Richmond, in the south; Nebraska and Oklahoma, in the midwest; Southern California and U. C. L. A., on the west coast, and Utah (tied twice), in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven.

Not all of these teams, of course, can be considered national title prospects. By the same token, there are a lot of real contenders which have been beaten, often by the one point that sometimes spells the difference between a perfect season and a ruined one.

Contenders for sectional and conference championships take in a lot more ground. The situation, by sections, shapes up like this for the first week-end of November:

East: It's a long time since any one team did so much to aid the prestige of eastern football as Cornell did last Saturday by whipping Ohio State, 23-14, after spotting the Big Ten "Powerhouse" the first two touchdowns. That triumph automatically installed the Big Red team as the east's No. 1 power, and next Saturday's game against Columbia, despite the Lions' decisive 26-7 win over Virginia Military, shouldn't hurt Cornell's stock.

Two Keen Battles: Duquesne, 13-0 winner over Texas Tech Friday, faces another stiff intersectional test against Marquette, and Catholic, 14-0 winner over Miami, meets Tulsa of the Missouri valley conference. Dartmouth encounters its traditionally-troublesome enemy, Yale, but off the Green's easy 16-0 win over Harvard and Yale's 27-7 licking by Michigan, Dartmouth figures to remain undefeated.

Georgetown, after beating George Washington, 7-0, meets West Virginia, which tied South Carolina, 6-6, Friday.

The biggest games on the east-schedule pit Army, which hasn't shown much this season, against Notre Dame and Harvard against Princeton, which turned up with a 26-12 win over Brown. Notre Dame's fine unbeaten team just managed to stave off Carnegie Tech, 7-6, while the Cadets routed Ursinus, 46-13.

Pennsylvania, knocked out of the picture by a 30-6 licking from North Carolina, meets Navy, 15-7 victim of Clemson. Fordham, which came back as an eastern threat by whipping Pitt, 27-13, tackles Rice's hapless Owls. New York U., 14-13 winner over a stubborn Georgia team, faces off against Lafayette, Boston College and Holy Cross, still ranked among the eastern leaders, play Auburn and Providence, respectively.

South: It's Tennessee, the nation's ranking team in last week's Associated Press poll, against Louisiana State with the Southeastern Conference title as the probable stake. The Volunteers knocked off Mercer, 17-0, in last Saturday's breather, while L. S. U. turned back Vanderbilt, 12-6, when Ken Kavanaugh caught two more passes.

Kentucky, co-leader with Tennessee, Georgia Tech and Tulane, faces Alabama, which turned back Mississippi State, 7-0, in another major Mississippi, beaten for the first time by Tulane, 18-0, encounters Vanderbilt. Georgia Tech plays Duke, which gained a second-place tie in the Southern Conference with a hard-won 6-0 decision over Wake Forest. Tulane has an open date.

North Carolina, with the Southern Conference pack on its heels, returns to its own league to play North Carolina State, while Richmond Tackles V. M. I. Virginia meets Chicago, and Miami plays Texas Tech in the south's best intersectional tilts.

Midwest: In spite of that thumping from Cornell, Ohio State plays the leading role in the Big Ten, facing a traditional rival, Indiana. The Bucks still are tied with Michigan for the conference lead, while Indiana's Hoosiers, idle last week, are a real threat. Michigan should win another from Illinois, 13-0 victim of Northwestern when the Wildcats finally go going. Northwestern plays Minnesota's so-far disappointing team, and Iowa, 19-13 winner over Wisconsin, plays Purdue, which went to the west coast to take a 13-6 licking from Santa Clara.

Notable Victories: The twin powers of the Big Six, Nebraska and Oklahoma, scored notable victories. Nebraska overwhelmed Kansas State, 25-9, and Oklahoma routed the Missouri Valley Conference leader, Oklahoma Aggies, 41-0. Missouri gained a tie with Nebraska for the lead by whipping Iowa State, 21-6, without using "Pitchin' Paul" Christian.

The two leaders collide next Saturday. Oklahoma plays Iowa State, and Kansas meets Kansas State in a "consolation" game.

Southwest: The unbeaten Texas Aggies breezed past Baylor's Bears, 20-0, in their second Southwest Conference game, and are tied for the lead with Texas University's sophomore team, which trimmed Rice, 26-12, with the aid of an 80-yard run by Jack Crain. The Aggies next meet Arkansas, beaten 7-0 by Villanova at Philadelphia, while the Longhorns play Southern Methodist, one of the most dangerous teams in the circuit, although it hasn't met a conference foe. Texas, Christian and Baylor clash in another conference game.

Pacific Coast: One title contender is due for elimination this week when Oregon State plays Southern California on a neutral field at Portland, Ore. The Beavers, only undefeated and untied team in the loop, beat Washington State, 12-0, while Southern Cal., living up to its pre-season promise after an uncertain start, defeated California, 26-0.

The winning team will have to account for U. C. L. A., which beat Oregon, 16-6, to put the Webfoots out of the picture. The Uclans play California Saturday. Washington, which conquered Stanford by an odd 8-5 score, plays Montana, 13-0 winner over Idaho. Oregon meets Washington State and Stanford faces Santa Clara.

Sunday Games: Sunday "independent" games pit Loyola of Los Angeles against San Francisco and St. Mary's against Dayton of Ohio.

Rocky Mountain: Denver threw the mountain states' Big Seven into a state of considerable confusion by holding "unbeatable" Utah to a 7-7 tie. That left them tied for the lead and the race wide open.

Comebacking Colorado, which downed Wyoming 27-7 for its second victory in three conference starts, is the Utes' next opponent while Denver plays Brigham Young. Colorado Mines maintained

Press Box Jottings

Although we've heard a lot about this Sandy Greene, the famed negro back, we'd take Gus Siko any day. Gus really was the bulwark of the Poughkeepsie driving power. Greene is a good blocker but not so much on the running end of the game.

Kingston's secondary went haywire with the deadly air bombs being tossed by the Kallochmen. In all, Kingston didn't look so good. . . . Jay DeWitt further demonstrated his value to the Maroon club, even in a losing cause. Jay's blocking and running stood out. . . . Coach Kias failed to nominate Jim Ashdown for starting work. Jim has broken training rules recently and so Kias started "Rajah" Goodsell.

Kingston's backers continued "there's still encouragement. They needed it too. . . . Next week the Kiasmen travel to Port Jervis for their second DUSO League attraction. . . . In that game odds won't mean a thing. Both elevens have suffered severe setbacks by Poughkeepsie, one of the finest high school elevens in the country.

Despite advancements to the 15 and 21 yard line respectively by the Maroon and the Kallochmen the 3,250 odd customers watched a scoreless first period. On the opening kickoff Kingston recovered a fumble and a couple of power dives put the sphere on the 15. But here Poughkeepsie shut the door. About the middle of the period Poughkeepsie marked off three successive touchdowns which advanced them to the Kingston 21. On fourth down, however, Siko's completed pass lacked necessary yardage.

In the closing minutes of the first session Fallon booted out of bounds on his 46 and from here Poughkeepsie pushed on with full speed ahead. When the quarter expired Siko chucked a lofter to Frankie Aiello who grabbed the pigskin on the Maroon 33. On a tricky reverse Tom McDonald stalked through tackle, cut nicely and was finally downed on the 10. Greene bucked to the 7. Aiello then dropped back, spotted Gus Siko in the end zone and whipped a wobbly pass which was good for the score. Greene's plunge for the point was stopped.

Poughkeepsie's wide-awake secondary started to move again after the kickoff as Aiello plucked Fallon's pass and was downed on his 45. A 15-yard penalty for clipping failed to stop the drive, however, as Poughkeepsie, beginning to get hot, drove for another score. Siko slipped a pass to Aiello on the 40 and from there he galloped to the locals' 35. A plunge failed so Siko dropped back and leveled one to Aiello who was dumped on the 10. Siko bucked to the four. Greene then rammed off tackle for the touchdown. Greene's plunge was good for the extra marker.

The bewildered Kiasmen continued to work in a pathetic mood in the third period. Part of the confusion was due to Frank Aiello's sensational run back of a punt which was good for 63 yards. But Kingston thwarting another score, saw DeWitt intercept Siko's pass on his 16. An about face had Siko lunging up from the rear to snag Fallon's chuck on the locals' 28. This was the place for another deadly heave as Siko shoved a pass to Stoothoff who leaped nicely on the five and continued to gallop over for the six points.

Giving up and expecting no mercy Poughkeepsie rapped at the door again. Aiello took Ashdown's punt on the Kingston 35 and ran it back to the 21. Greene on a quarterback sneak advanced to the 16. Aiello backed up, saw Siko in the clear and whipped a pass to the latter who took it in the end zone. Aiello bucked over for the point.

Completely dazed by the passing attack of the Kallochmen, the Maroon and White warriors had little to hope for now. Shackled in their attempt to smash the line for anything except a less the Kiasmen tried to hit the airplanes for some worthwhile yardage. But a stonewall defense greeted this idea.

The Poughkeepsie Powerhouse launched its final mass attack in the early minutes of the final session. Taking the ball on its own 43 Poughkeepsie marched 53 yards for the score which was culminated by Aiello's pass to Norm Key in the end zone. Coach Kallach's reserves made their debut throughout this closing chapter. Most noteworthy was Key, who had his share of line plunging and pass receiving. Kingston's only moral support was its lone completed pass. Ashdown slipped Gill a lofter which was good for 9 yards, the only yardage gained by aerials.

Spotting Kingston's weakness in the pass defense the Kallochmen rained passes through the air. Continuously Gus Siko, Frank Aiello and Sandy Greene faded for scoring lifts which had the Kiasmen flat-footed.

Siko and Greene Shine for Home School in Victory

Blue and White Gains 290 Rushing and 150 by Air; Maroon Makes Only 81 Yards

Those rampaging marauders of Poughkeepsie High School's football machine continued to lay waste in its path, of conquests Saturday afternoon as they handed Kingston a 32 to 0 pasting. Leading the destruction of the Maroon eleven were Gus Siko and Sandy Greene, two of the finest backs in high school football.

While the Maroon and White gridders were on the receiving end of some of the worst punishment ever dealt to a Kias-coached aggregation, Coach Samy Kallach, Siko literally defeated Kingston single-handed. Gus pocketed two touchdowns and whipped a passer to Stoothoff to rack up another. Frank Aiello, Sandy Greene and Norm Key registered the other half dozen markers.

A glance at the all-important statistics will clearly indicate the story in a nutshell. Led by Siko, Greene, Aiello and McDonald, four blazing gallopers, the Blue and White steamroller gained exactly 290 yards by rushing as to Kingston's meagre 81. Kingston's famed passing attack which was the lone cause for a possible victory, failed to click in the least. On the other hand Poughkeepsie gained 150 yards through the air.

Scoreless Opener

Despite advancements to the 15 and 21 yard line respectively by the Maroon and the Kallochmen the 3,250 odd customers watched a scoreless first period. On the opening kickoff Kingston recovered a fumble and a couple of power dives put the sphere on the 15. But here Poughkeepsie shut the door. About the middle of the period Poughkeepsie marked off three successive touchdowns which advanced them to the Kingston 21. On fourth down, however, Siko's completed pass lacked necessary yardage.

In the closing minutes of the first session Fallon booted out of bounds on his 46 and from here Poughkeepsie pushed on with full speed ahead. When the quarter expired Siko chucked a lofter to Frankie Aiello who grabbed the pigskin on the Maroon 33. On a tricky reverse Tom McDonald stalked through tackle, cut nicely and was finally downed on the 10. Greene bucked to the 7. Aiello then dropped back, spotted Gus Siko in the end zone and whipped a wobbly pass which was good for the score. Greene's plunge for the point was stopped.

Poughkeepsie's wide-awake secondary started to move again after the kickoff as Aiello plucked Fallon's pass and was downed on his 45. A 15-yard penalty for clipping failed to stop the drive, however, as Poughkeepsie, beginning to get hot, drove for another score. Siko slipped a pass to Aiello on the 40 and from there he galloped to the locals' 35. A plunge failed so Siko dropped back and leveled one to Aiello who was dumped on the 10. Siko bucked to the four. Greene then rammed off tackle for the touchdown. Greene's plunge was good for the extra marker.

The bewildered Kiasmen continued to work in a pathetic mood in the third period. Part of the confusion was due to Frank Aiello's sensational run back of a punt which was good for 63 yards. But Kingston thwarting another score, saw DeWitt intercept Siko's pass on his 16. An about face had Siko lunging up from the rear to snag Fallon's chuck on the locals' 28. This was the place for another deadly heave as Siko shoved a pass to Stoothoff who leaped nicely on the five and continued to gallop over for the six points.

Giving up and expecting no mercy Poughkeepsie rapped at the door again. Aiello took Ashdown's punt on the Kingston 35 and ran it back to the 21. Greene on a quarterback sneak advanced to the 16. Aiello backed up, saw Siko in the clear and whipped a pass to the latter who took it in the end zone. Aiello bucked over for the point.

Completely dazed by the passing attack of the Kallochmen, the Maroon and White warriors had little to hope for now. Shackled in their attempt to smash the line for anything except a less the Kiasmen tried to hit the airplanes for some worthwhile yardage. But a stonewall defense greeted this idea.

The Poughkeepsie Powerhouse launched its final mass attack in the early minutes of the final session. Taking the ball on its own 43 Poughkeepsie marched 53 yards for the score which was culminated by Aiello's pass to Norm Key in the end zone. Coach Kallach's reserves made their debut throughout this closing chapter. Most noteworthy was Key, who had his share of line plunging and pass receiving. Kingston's only moral support was its lone completed pass. Ashdown slipped Gill a lofter which was good for 9 yards, the only yardage gained by aerials.

Spotting Kingston's weakness in the pass defense the Kallochmen rained passes through the air. Continuously Gus Siko, Frank Aiello and Sandy Greene faded for scoring lifts which had the Kiasmen flat-footed.
